Bell Admits Guilt According To Buffalo Police Commissioner

Can't Be Tried For Crime Again—Alleged Accomplices Are Sought

(International News Service)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 19.—Anthony W. Bell, 38, former chief of detectives of Fayette County and ex-chief of police of Masontown, Pa., who was acquitted in July, 1929, of a charge of murdering John Donaghue, bootlegger, today admitted his guilt, naming three accomplices, Police Commissioner Austin J. Roche announced.

Bell, arrested her a month ago under the name of Pat Reynolds and charged with posing as a dry agent and extorting money from saloon keepers, signed a confession stating he and three companions lured Donaghue to a spot in a lonely road between Uniontown and Masontown and shot him to death because he "was a double-crosser."

Assistant U. S. Attorney Richard A. Grimm, prosecuting the extortion charge against Bell, said the federal accusation against him had been held in abeyance temporarily while, as a state's witness, he aided in the prosecution of his companions in the murder. Bell was turned over to Pennsylvania authorities today.

Two Others Held

Two of the three men named by Bell are reported to have been arrested in Uniontown, Pa.

In his confession, Bell said Donaghue was put "on the spot" because the bootlegger had double-crossed him in a liquor deal.

A squealer pal of Donaghue's took him for a ride in an open roadster to the death rendezvous in the Uniontown road. As Donaghue's car reached the appointed place, Bell said he and his companions, bore down upon it. Donaghue's pal ducked to the tonneau to escape the hail of bullets that sought out Donaghue.

The gang fled, leaving Donaghue dying.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—Blood trickling from the closed rumble seat of a parked car attracted the attention of a pedestrian today.

He called a policeman.

When the officer lifted the cover of the seat he found the bodies of two men both of whom had been shot through the head.

Check up of the license revealed that it belonged to Stephen Conover who recently moved just a block away from where the car was discovered.

A few minutes after the bodies had been discovered, Anthony Cortez was brought to the Sydenhan hospital suffering from a gunshot wound in his right leg. Detectives investigating both shootings, believing there may be some connection.

Cortez refused to explain his wound or his head bruises.

Band Concert This Evening

"Make America Musical" will be the theme of tonight's entertainment in the Senior High school when a motion picture under that title will be shown, and the Senior High School band will present a concert, under the direction of Joe Replogle.

Music as a part of the aesthetic life of America has a very definite importance. To starve ourselves musically is to stultify the soul. All over the country musicians and musical organizations are endeavoring to revive an interest in music that has waned somewhat in the past five years.

"Making America Musical" is a picture of the national band contest in Tulsa, Oklahoma in 1931. It is an interesting picture, the band concert will be well worth hearing, and there will be no admission. The entertainment starts at eight o'clock.

No Official Notification Of Manchurian State

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

MUKDEN, Feb. 19.—The consuls-general of the United States and other foreign countries here have not been officially informed of the establishments of an independent Manchurian state, and they have not received an official text of the proclamation of independence.

The Japanese "ballyhoo" concerning the new state has been confined to the Japanese quarters, and the Chinese have maintained a strict silence.

The Japanese press insisted today that a conference will be held Sunday at Changchun to determine the composition of the government of the new state, but Japanese military headquarters told International News Service this was guesswork, pointing out it would be impossible for the Chinese leaders to get together again so soon.

They have just concluded conferences here outlining plans for the new Japanese-controlled state.

Final steps are expected to be taken early in March. General Ma Chan-Shan probably will be governor of Heilungkiang province, and Chang Ching-Hui, present governor, is expected to become first president of the independent Manchuria.

Going to see Jack Dempsey in his first big comeback fight tonight. Us old-timers got to pull for each other.

China Rejects Demand Of Japan To Withdraw Troops From Shanghai

Big Offensive By Japanese Troops To Drive Chinese Army From Shanghai Is Expected To Be Launched In Few Hours—Americans Are Evacuating Danger Zones. Tokyo Declares Chinese Nineteenth Route Army Will Be Destroyed

(By International News Service)

Chinese authorities at Shanghai rejected the Japanese ultimatum today and the great Japanese offensive is expected to be launched tomorrow morning Shanghai time (tonight, Eastern Standard time, in the United States.)

Lieut.-Gen. Uyeda, commanding Japanese land forces, told International News Service he will not wait until expiration of the ultimatum at 7 p. m. Saturday, Shanghai time, or 4 a. m. Saturday, E. S. T., but will open his drive if the Chinese do not begin withdrawing by 7 a. m. Saturday Shanghai time, or 6 o'clock F. S. T. tonight.

Counter Proposal Is Rejected

Nanking government officials offered to withdraw Chinese troops twenty kilometers from Shanghai if the Japanese would withdraw a similar distance but this proposal was rejected by the Japanese in preliminary negotiations earlier in the week.

Tokyo announced its determination to destroy the Chinese Nineteenth Route Army which has conducted the defense at Shanghai and will send more reinforcements to China if necessary.

Americans and other foreigners were evacuating the danger zones today.

The Tokyo government has instructed Ambassador Debuchi at Washington to inform Secretary Stimson his objections to the landing of Japanese troops in the International Settlement have no legal basis.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 19.—Wu Te-Chen, mayor of the native Chinese city of Shanghai, this evening flatly rejected the Japanese ultimatum calling for demilitarization of Shanghai, declaring that the dispute was not a local affair and that settlement should rest with the foreign offices of the two countries concerned.

Mayor Wu refused to transmit the ultimatum officially to General Tsai-Ting-Kai, commander of the nineteenth route army which has defended Shanghai against the Japanese invasion.

Couched in vigorous terms, mayor Wu's reply declared that responsibility for any further hostilities in Shanghai must rest solely with the Japanese "whose troops have encroached upon Chinese territory and attacked Chinese troops."

Chinese Reply

The points in the Chinese reply were as follows:

1. Solution of all disputes between China and Japan should properly be referred to the respective foreign offices of the two countries and not to local authorities.
2. Anti-Japanese boycotts are

Depression War Gaining Speed

Seeking Jobs For Million Men In Move In Nation

LEGION PUSHING GREAT CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 19.—"When great groups join to do a good deed no one wants to be left out." That factor, according to Executive Director Mark T. McKee and Director of Organization Carl Byoir, is bringing the war against depression rapidly up to full speed.

Fighting for jobs for a million workers now unemployed, the American Legion, the Association of National Advertisers, the American Federation of Labor and the Legion Auxiliary, moved toward the close of the first week of the campaign watching new cities go into action each day.

While the total of jobs secured rolls higher each day, national campaign executives here are bending every effort to perfect machinery in communities that have not yet reported results.

"Cities now in action are showing what can be done," says an official statement today. "What 100 cities can do 5,000 cities can do."

"Get behind this fast growing snowball and help pile up results," was the word that went out today over a national-wide broadcast in the campaign of United Action for Employment. Further advice to all America was. "Find the Legion Post Commander in your community and volunteer for service."

Japanese Responsible

4. Responsibility for any further hostilities in Shanghai must rest solely with the Japanese, whose troops have encroached upon Chinese territory and attacked Chinese troops.

By turning the ultimatum over to Wellington Koo, General Tsai Ting-Kai automatically placed it in the hands of the Chinese National Government, although he termed it "unnecessary and ridiculous."

The general characterized the demand for withdrawal of Chinese troops as absurd, pointing out that Japan had invaded Chinese territory and therefore had no conceivable right to order Chinese troops off their own soil.

He accused Japan of violating international law by waging war against China for 22 days without a declaration of war, and then handing an ultimatum to the nineteenth route army instead of the national government.

Tokyo, Feb. 19.—The Japanese government today insisted upon its right to land Japanese troops within the international settlement.

Ambassador Debuchi at Washington to so notify Secretary of State Stimson and to determine what is the basis for Stimson's protest against the use of the settlement as a basis for military operations against the Chinese.

No legal permit nor the consent of the powers is necessary for the disembarkation of troops, the government contended, though it is the practice to notify the municipal council of the settlement which was done.

Stimson had raised the objection that the powers had not been notified of Japan's intentions.

Detroit's Death Rate Very Low

Big Inroads Made Upon The Principal Causes Of Death

(International News Service)

DETROIT, Feb. 19. — Detroit's death rate for the year 1931, announced Dr. Henry Vaughan, health commissioner, is the lowest in the city's history. The rate is 8.7 deaths per 1,000 population.

Coincident with this announcement Dr. Vaughan said the Board of Health will spend $3,520,628 in the fiscal year 1932-33 to safeguard citizens.

"Inroads have been made upon every one of the principal causes of death," Dr. Vaughan said. "The death rate has dropped steadily since 1916 when the figure was 15.2 deaths per 1,000 population.

"Small pox struck 42 persons during the year but did not cause a single death, while diphtheria killed 96 persons out of 1,060 cases. Every one of these deaths could have been avoided by the prompt administration of preventative measures.

The death rates per 100,000 population for other causes are: Scarlet fever 2.4; tuberculosis 73.5; typhoid fever 0.73. The mortality rate among infants in their first year is only 56.2 per 1,000 compared with 104.2 ten years ago.

ACQUITTED OF SLAYING; DETECTIVE ADMITS GUILT

complices and the squealer were not tried.

With the confession of Bell, who never can be tried again for the murder because he would be placed in double jeopardy, police hoped that convictions of his accomplices could be brought about.

The confession was won from Bell, police said, by a clever young police officer who won the former policeman's friendship through daily contacts with him during the past month Bell was in the Erie county jail awaiting action of the federal grand jury on the extortion charge.

Confession Gained

Calling the officer to him several days ago, Bell told him of his admiration and hinted at the Donaghue shooting. Friendly questioning by the young officer brought about the signed confession.

Wade K. Newell, district attorney of Fayette county, who was here yesterday to confer with local police and Federal Attorney Grimm, took Bell to Uniontown by automobile.

A peculiar feature in the case is that Newell was an attorney for the defense in the murder trial of Bell that resulted in his acquittal.

According to Bell's confession, Bell said he had had a fist fight with Donaghue several days before the murder. Suspecting that he would be charged with the crime, Bell said he arranged for a perfect alibi.

Tells Time Of Murder

After the shooting he hurried home, got his wife, and took her to several public places where he took pains to let his presence be known. He said he visited several hotels and stores.

The alibi worked when the medical examiner testified that he had fixed the time of Donaghue's death at 2 a. m. on July 30, 1929. At that time, and for an hour before, Bell had been seen by several people including police officers many miles from the scene of the crime.

Bell said the murder actually occurred before midnight on July 29, leaving him ample time to get back to his usual haunts.

In his confession Bell said that A. D. Rosenberg, district attorney of Fayette county at the time of the murder, killed himself the next day. He said that Rosenberg shot himself because he feared disclosures by bootleggers that would tend to link him with charges that graft was being paid enforcement officials.

AMERICANS-BRITISH WARNED TO EVACUATE SHANGHAI DISTRICTS

least by 7:00 A. M., tomorrow (6:00 P. M., E. S. T.), Friday, the time limit set by the Japanese for Chinese military leaders to begin evacuating their front lines.

Chinese Defiant.

The Chinese, who were to deliver an official reply today, announced they would flatly reject the ultimatum.

American and British troops took over the front lines of the settlement defenses from the Shanghai volunteer corps as the outbreak of major hostilities neared.

Both Chinese and Japanese lined up their forces for the battle, and prospects of actual plane fighting in the air, for the first time since the present trouble, loomed as it was reported a Chinese air force was ready to take the air at dawn tomorrow to help defend the Chinese positions.

Alarm Is Felt.

Foreign observers noted with alarm that the Japanese now have abandoned the pretext of protecting the settlement in their dealings with China, and that they now have negotiated with her as with a country with which they were at war.

To back this charge that Japan now considers herself in a state of hostilities with China, foreigners pointed out that neither the municipal council nor the foreign consuls were notified by Japan regarding yesterday's ultimutum to Chinese leaders.

In previous negotiations with China, Japan has politely observed the international etiquette of the settlement and kept representatives of all leading powers duly informed of her activities.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The bears received rough treatment from the bulls in the stock market today. Thoroughly routed and demoralized by the stock exchange's order forbidding brokers to loan stocks to the shorts except on written instructions from the owners, The bear traders were ready to give up the fight and to pay higher prices for stocks rather than to attempt to borrow them further.

Many of these "shorts" had already been given a terrific beating by the almost uninterrupted rise in stocks since last Thursday. Within the past week, including today's early spectacular gains, many of the leaders have risen 5 to 20 points, well above the levels at which the bears had put out their "short lines."

United States Steel, for example, which sold last week at 37 3-8, reached a peak of 52½ today, up 15 points on the move. The bears who were compelled to pay stiff premiums for the use of the stock did not relish further losses through the rise in the market value of the stock. American telephone at 137 showed a net gain of nearly 26 points from last week's figures. Union Pacific Railroad was up about 30 points and Westinghouse Electric up 12 points.

Needle Can't Hide In Haystack Now

(International News Service)

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Feb. 19—That old excuse that something is as hard to find as a needle in a haystack has no validity at the laboratories of the General Electric Company.

In recent experiments workers at the industrial x-ray laboratory found needles or pins in haystacks with ease.

Lacking a haystack on the premises, one workers hid a pin in a bale of excelsior five feet high and several feet in thickness.

Another worker, with special x-ray equipment, found the pin five minutes later. A short exposure of x-ray film from two angles on the bale revealed its exact location and he dug it out within a few minutes.

WE-HAVA MEMBERS DINE AT ELKS CLUB

A dinner party featured the meeting of the We-Hava Club members Thursday evening when they met at the Elks Club house. The menu was served at 6:30 o'clock at a table prettily decorated in keeping with the George Washington tones, and a huge bouquet of choice flowers of the season.

Later a contest in cards was in progress, with prizes being won by Mrs. David Rowland and Mrs. Merrett Reynolds.

Their next meeting will be held on Tuesday February 23, at the home of Mrs. Allan Pattison on Neshannock avenue instead of with Mrs. Dan Heasley of Poland, O., as previously planned.

Friendship Club

The Friendship Club members will be enterained Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Thomas Cuscino on Huey street.

The little Girl who wouldn't

EAT

When a youngster has no appetite, it's probably due to stasis. A little fig syrup will soon correct this condition — then watch the child eat.

Nature knows best! Never coax a child to eat! Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite—get rid of stasis. Children who don't eat are sluggish. Not to correct this is inexcusable. It is so easy to do, if you will only use the "California treatment." Read what it is doing for listless children in every part of the country!

When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, don't give small children any constipating cathartic that drains the system and weakens twenty feet of tender bowels! California fig syrup is the only "medicine" they need!

Sluggishness ended in 2 Weeks!

That girl or boy with a furry tongue and a bad breath should not be dosed with salts! California fig syrup will gently stimulate the colon muscles—and the child you used to coax to eat will fairly devour his food, digest it, gain weight.

Try the California treatment! Begin tonight, with enough of the pure fig syrup to cleanse the colon thoroughly. Less tomorrow, then every other day, or twice a week until the child's appetite, digestion, weight, complexion, tell you the stasis is gone.

Be sure to get the real California fig syrup. Any druggist has it, all bottled, with directions. It's a natural, vegetable laxative. Just as good for babes of two years as boys of ten. They all love its taste!

NOTICE TO MOTHERS

There are imitations of California fig syrup, and those who would sell you some substitute even when a child's health is concerned. Don't ever take any bottle that is not plainly labeled CALIFORNIA.

ENGLAND ABANDONS FREE TRADE

AFTER steadfastly resisting a general tariff for more than one hundred years Great Britain has finally yielded to the inevitable and definitely turned her back on free trade. The chancellor of the exchequer announced last week that parliament will levy a duty of ten per cent on all imports into Britain except a few foodstuffs and a few raw materials.

In turning to protection Great Britain has merely fallen in line with all the other great commercial nations of the world. It was logical that she should be the last, for if any nation could prosper under free trade Great Britain must be that nation. With a limited area, limited raw material and other natural resources, the only possibility of British prosperity seemed to be in her overseas trade, and that trade must rest upon ability to manufacture goods at a price that would command world markets. But the time has come when British manufacturers have found themselves not only unable to compete in many foreign markets which they have formerly dominated, but unable even to hold their home market against the tremendous pressure of foreign competitors. The world is fairly crowded with vast supplies of every sort, seeking a market at nearly any price, and British industry had found itself simply overwhelmed and obliged in self defense to set up a tariff wall.

The lesson to the United States is so plain that it may be read on the run. If Great Britain, better equipped than any other nation in the world to hold her own with all competitors in the field of international trade, finds it necessary to discard the traditions of a century and resort to protective tariff, how much more essential it is to our prosperity that the system upon which our industries have rested from the foundation of the Republic should not be disturbed. It is vastly to the credit of the Democratic leaders in congress that, after all their violent assaults upon it, they have abandoned the fight against the Hawley-Smoot law and now frankly admit that to reduce the rates it carries would be to expose our markets to a disastrous flood of cheap foreign goods and thus increase unemployment and further demoralize business.

The American protective policy has never been so vital an economic necessity as it is now.

NEW FOOTBALL RULES

Last season's large number of football fatalities is responsible for the national football rules committee making the most drastic changes in the rules of play in 25 years. The committee's action was taken in the full acknowledge that fewer than 10 of the deaths were the fault of the game as played in collegiate contests and probably was prompted more by the hops of reassuring the public than in the expectation that they would eliminate all accidents.

All of the changes are definitely aimed at greater safety for the players. None of them will materially change the game from the spectator's standpoint. But they are merely rules that will be worthless unless observed by coaches and players and enforced by the field officials.

Restrictions on kick-off formations are designed to break up the wedge plays built around the run-back, which last year caused more serious accidents than any other type of play. Liberalization of substitution rules will discourage keeping injured players in the play, and further regulation of blocking tactics and use of the hands, knees and elbows by defensive players should eliminate some unnecessary roughness. There will be less knee work and piling up under the new ruling making the ball dead when the runner's body strikes the ground. The new football armor will be easier on heads and shoulders.

Good rules rigidly enforced will help, but the gridiron player's best safeguards are thorough training under good supervision and expert coaching.

THE PRACTICAL SEX

The prime minister of Great Pritian adds his authority to that of those who hold that women are more practical than men. He even makes the sweeping observation that the only practical people he has met are women. "They are," he adds, "great Chancellors of the Exchequer." Yet when he formed his cabinet he did not add a single woman to it, though he might well have done so. There is, for example, the Duchess of Atholl, who held a post in the second Baldwin ministry and who is by general acknowledgement one of the keenest intellects in the house of commons. She would have been especially fitted to the post of minister of education. Another brilliant woman member is Lady Astor, who would perhaps not run in cabinet harness comfortably.

His general thesis is not impaired, however, by this conspicuous omission to apply it. That women are more practical and less sentimental than men was once a paradox; but the time gives it proof. In one of his poems Matthew Arnold says that they demand in men the reverse of the qualities usually ascribed to them; they do not like the too imaginative man. Many will regard this as only half of the truth. Possibly they have too little imagination themselves to appreciate this quality. The modern woman as a rule does not like to be idealized and put on a pedestal. She has her own part of the world's work to do.

MEXICO AND JAPAN

The line-up of world opinion against the tactics of Japan in China is made longer by the emphatic statements of Excelsior, Mexican newspaper which speaks the attitude of the government.

If serious trouble were to come in the Far East, says this paper, Mexico would find itself unalterably allied with the United States. The editorial continues:

"The United States is our neighbor and we might as well accept that as a fact. Our interests lie with hers in this matter. We should continue to be friends. Mexico is and should continue to be at peace with the world but we have our interests to defend and these interests are allied with those of the United States. Mexico cannot see with indifference the grave developments in the Far Eastern sector."

It is the opinion of the Mexican editor that while Japan undoubtedly needs room for expansion, her conduct at Shanghai is entirely unjustifiable. The editorial is particularly significant in view of the fact that country has traditionally regarded Japan as a friend and has smarted under memories of controversies with America. Recognition of the need for co-operation and friendship with America, of late, has been expressed by officials and other spokesmen for the Mexican people and cordial relations are a result.—The Oakland Tribune.

A Story of a Father And His Three Daughters What Do You Think?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I heard the other night about an old, old man who was treated atrociously by his family.

The old fellow was rich and powerful and he decided to divide all his wealth amongst his three daughters. It was up to them to determine which was to get the most of his property, however...Each had to tell him just how much she loved him and the one who described her love most persuasively would get the most from him.

His two oldest daughters married, made fair speeches and pleased the old man mightily. He gave them big chunks of his possessions.

But the youngest daughter had no gift for flattering words. Her love was not the bargaining kind; her heart was more ponderous than her tongue; and though, in HIS heart, he loved this daughter best, he flew into a rage and ordered her from his house and disowned and disinherited her—and she married a Frenchman and left the country. And he cried, for all the world to hear, "How sharper than a serpent's tooth is to have a thankless child."

Then he lived with his two other daughters, part of the year in one home, part in another.

But they did not treat him well. They took his servants away, they insulted his gray hairs.

His heart broke, he left home in the midst of a storm, he went completely mad, moaning "I am a man more sinned against than sinning."

In the end, I heard, all three daughters and the husband of one of them died violently and the old man himself recovered his sanity just in time to die of grief over the death of his youngest and dearest child.

* * *

A terrible, pathetic tragedy? Yes, it is. . . . It is the story of "King Lear," which William Shakespeare wrote. And when I heard the story, when I saw it acted magnificently on a stage, I was deeply moved. I was carried off my feet by the genius of Shakespeare.

But wait a minute! The old man, in his power and strength, had been a stupid and imperious bully. He had been stubborn and unimaginative. Blind, he had not known that his two older daughters were selfish and treacherous. Vain, he had not suspected the tender depths of his youngest daughter's love.

Why shouldn't Goneril and Regan have hated him and bided their time for revenge for many a peevish insult? And why should his dear Cordelia have loved him at all?

Goneril and Regan were "unnatural daughters" but he had trained them so. Cordelia loved him despite his mad intemperances.

A bully in prosperity, a whiner in adversity, never once did that old man, King Lear, learn wisdom and declare, "This has come upon me because in my arrogance I was a fool, because I was ignorant, because I did not know that even the love of a child must be watered and cherished daily. All this that I suffer now, I stored up in ignorance for myself. I am terribly sinned against now but I was a mighty sinner."

There are Lears a-plenty in this world. Fine fathers, who have won and who deserve the love of their children—but foolish fathers, too, who have stored up bitterness and loneliness for their old age.

JOCK McFEE'S SAD EXPERIENCE

Said Jock McFee a friend of mine in a brogue I can't repeat:
"I'll take no rides from strangers now that I may chance to meet.
They may bid me share their company but I'll smile and let them pass,
And I'll wait to ride in the city bus which never runs out of gas.

"He looked the gentleman every inch as up to the curb he came.
'Would you care to ride to the town,' said he. And how could I know his game,
Since a penny saved is a penny earned, and bus fare's more than that I gladly climbed in his motor car and settled myself to chat.

"We skipped along for a block or two, when a sputtering sound was heard.
'I believe I am out of gas!" said he; 'but how fortunate this occurred
As close to a station as we are. We'll fill up the tank right here.'
Then I saw him fumble his pockets through and fancied his face looked queer.

"'I am sorry my friend to tell you this, but I haven't a cent with me,
Will you lend me enough to pay for the gas, until next we meet,' said he.
Which I did, reluctantly, I confess, for I made up my mind right then
That many a year would come and go ere ever we'd meet again.

"And now though the snows are drifted deep and the winds are blowing strong,
I'll gladly stand on the curb and wait til a bus shall come along.
I'll remember this sad experience, and a cold, cold day 'twill be Ere another stranger into his car shall lure old Jock McFee."

CHEER UP!

The Chicago Record Herald, now extinct, used to have a jolly rhymster. He would have no use for the "blue" songs that now dominate the radio, the vaudeville stage and the modern house party. This rhyme, clipped and pasted in My Old Scrap-book a good many years, ago will turn your blues a rosy red.

What's the use repining,
Though you're sick and sad,
While your rival's dining
And is well and glad?
Who knows what tomorrow
May have piled in store?
He may sit in sorrow,
You may sigh no more.

What's the use of sighing
When your efforts fail?
Keep on bravely trying
Though you're gaunt and pale.
Even as you sadly
Drink the bitter brew,
Fortune may be gladly
Hurrying to you.

What's the use of yearning
To be rich or great?
Fy a single turning
Of the wheel of fate
You may rise up splendid,
Wealthy too, and proud,
All your troubles ended,
Envied by the crowd.

What's the use forgetting
Such great truths as these?
Why sit crushed and fretting?
Rise in ecstacies!
Why those rueful glances?
Cheer up, O my son!
In a billion chances
Maybe you'll have one.

AND NOW I'LL TELL ONE

The barn dances that the younger members of the farms gave during the winter in the pre-automobile days, have passed into history. These dances were real events, especially in the lives of the belles and thir beaus. But there were always a few belles who had no beaus, through no fault of their own. And there were also a number of young farm hands who in a pinch, would have done well as beaus, except for the fact that they were girl-shy. At one of these events, a maiden had sat as a wall-flower through two dances. Just after the second dance, one young man strolled over and talked with her, she waiting the while for the customary invitation for the pleasure of the next dance. Then, as the fiddler called out "Get your partners for the quadrille!" the young man departed to dance with another girl. This disappointment did not sweeten the maid's temper as she watched the gyrations of the dancers stepping through the quadrille. The dance over, a shy young man came hesitatingly toward her: "Be you dancin'?" he asked timidly. "Be you askin'?" returned the girl with a snap.

HERE'S A FUNNY ONE

Most college buildings are situated on a hill. That is what probably induces the exalted complex of superiority in the average college student over those down below. The college which I have in mind at the moment, is a co-educational institution and is located in a town where the winters match up well with those in the Arctic. At such times, when after a sleet storm, the streets become coated with glassy ice, walking up the hill to the college is a hazardous adventure. For every step you make forward, you slide two steps back, so that the only way to climb the hill is to turn around and go up backwards. However, let us not dwell on the task of climbing up the hill. The incident that I want to tell about is that of a professor who, on one of those slippery days, started on an errand down hill. The professor, in a state of absentmindedness common to his kind, forgot his caution when he started down and zip! up went his feet and down came the rest of him at a ninety degree angle, placing him in a rather neat seating position. The momentum of his fall started him sliding down just as one of the co-eds, who was directly behind, repeated his stunt and landed plump into the professorial lap. Down they shot, lickety clip, until they reached the bottom of the hill where they came to a halt. The young lady, too dazed to move, continued to sit in the professor's lap who, for the moment, was at loss as to the proper procedure to follow under the circumstances. Touching her lightly on the shoulder, he brought her out of her daze. "I beg your pardon, young lady," he said apologetically, "but this is as far as I am going."

Police Force Under League Is Declared Unacceptable

American Comment Shows Belief That Decrees Should Have Force, But Tendency Toward Super-State Is Fatal Defect

Suggestions that the League of Nations should enforce its decisions with the use of a "police force" made up of army and navy units of the world receives little approval in the United States. It is held to be France's answer to disarmament proposals, and to represent a tendency toward increased armament. Special emphasis is placed on the difficulty involved in determining the aggressor in international disputes, with uncertainty as to the control of such an international police force.

"The composition and control of any such international force," according to the NEW ORLEANS MORNING TRIBUNE, "would, of course, be the most critical point for consideration, if the proposal received serious discussion. If the personnel were padded with a disproportionate overplus of French, Polish, Czechoslovakian and Rumanian troops, it couldn't be regarded of course as anything but an addition to the already overwhelming soldier-power of France and its continental dependents or allies. If a force of that sort were composed, on the other hand, of elements widely recruited from the 50 to 60 nations constituting the league, that might furnish a basis for discussion."

"An international police force under the direction of the League of Nations," in the opinion of the COLUMBUS OHIO STATE JOURNAL, "would be nothing less than a force to protect France. * * * As Senator Borah predicted, the proposal is not looked upon graciously by the other powers. Its intent it too potentially dangerous." The SPRINGFIELD (MASS.) UNION points out that "such a conscripted army and naval force at the command of the league has been advocated by France from the time of the peace making at Versailles, where it was disapproved as impractical, if not positively dangerous." That paper adds: "If France, Great Britain and Italy, for instance, cannot agree to common action for the reduction their armaments, it may be imagined what would happen in an effort to agree upon the details of league command of a world force to which other nations would be compelled to contribute without an assured voice in its use. Efforts to settle the question of the actual employment of such a league authority and force in any particularly case or emergency might be even more threatening to cooperation."

"Quite properly, the United States is sitting tight," observes the MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL, declaring that "the whole course of events at Geneva since the beginning of the Far Eastern conflict argues against the French proposal." The ANN ARBOR DAILY NEWS holds that "the French proposal is not likely to get far," though it concedes that the Far Eastern developments "have shown the futility of moral force" and that the league "has failed as an instrument of peace because it lacked a means of enforcing its decrees." That paper concludes that "the establishment of an international army would make possible large reductions in national armies, with consequent saving and less threat of war."

"The French statesmen," declares the DAYTON DAILY NEWS, "are shrewd fellows. What they have done in smart politics, and with smart politics the matter will end. But don't undervalue the fact that in this 14th year of the armistice a mighty nation, even though only as a political play, proposed to change the government of the world from military force to police force. That idea may take centuries to incubate: come dey it will hatch." The SIOUX CITY JOURNAL remarks that "if the League of Nations can bring peace with the creation of an armed force, that will be better than no peace at all." The GARY POST-TRIBUNE avers that "the French proposal is doubtless utterly impractical, but it deserves consideration just the same." The PORT HURON TIMES HERALD says that "the scheme is not without logic," but as to letting it supplant the armies and navies of individual nations, they "are not going to agree to any such thing."

"The immediate reaction to such a proposal," comments the SCRANTON TIMES, "is that it would set up a superstate. The same thing, of course, has been said of the League of Nations and probably will be said of any other plan which involves united action by nations of the world. At the same time it affords opportunity for a very interesting study and emphasizes the difficulties of the problem which confronts the delegates to the disarmament conference."

"One can almost see," states the JERSEY CITY JOURNAL, "the expressive shrug of the shoulders and uplifted hands of the cartoonists' conventional Frenchman as he proclaims, 'Well, if M'sieur will not organize a police force, France must go armed to protect herself.' And the argument is a good one. It was good in our own 'bad west' days when each man had to be quick on the trigger. And every man in the world would have to go armed if there were no police forces, and every nation in the world will have to go armed until there is some kind of world police force to protect the weak and punish the outlaws."

"Imagine the United States army and navy, or any part of them, subject to the orders of a war council of a super-state," exclaims the RUTLAND HERALD and the CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR suggests: "Here is the fateful question. Whatever agency controlled the neutral army would encounter the same difficulty that the league ran into in the Manchurian struggle—naming the real aggressor. Had the league been able or willing to do that, it could easily have stopped hostilities by declaring an economic boycott. The trouble with the league is not lack of military power but lack of will power. Incidentally, the suggestion of a world police force is not without its touch of irony. The avowed purpose of the disarmament conference is to mitigate the threat of war by uniform reduction of armaments. Yet the first concrete proposal made at Geneva is to create a new and colossal type of military force!"

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

THE "BEST SELLERS"

Number of telephone directories issued and distributed by the Bell System makes these volumes rank easily as the "best seller" so far as totals in the hands of the public are concerned. For instance, last year there were 1,900 different directories distributed to subscribers with an aggregate issue of more than 36,000,000 copies. As a rule two issues of each directory are published every year.

Years of study have been given to size, character of type, arrangement of printed matter, quality and weight of paper, methods of binding and other problems involved in making the telephone directory easy to read and handle.

The directory is probably the most used volume in the world, being the basis for 985 telephone conversations which take place every second of the day in the United States.

KEEPING SELF-RESPECT

In youth you carried a chip on your shoulder, at all times.

Ready to defend your interests in a physical way or perhaps in a vocal manner—which resulted in trouble

As you have grown older you have sought to control your scrappy temper.

Perhaps you have carried even this too far and have become so mellow and easy that you won't stand up even for your own rights.

Thus you have the reputation for being too timid to defend yourself.

But you can command respect, even if you don't stand up for what is due you.

Men honor the man who will not permit another to impose upon him and knows how to prevent it in a reasonable, calm way.

If there is no other way than to protect yourself by force, then force it must be.

If the sacredness of home and family are invaded it might be necessary to engage in physical procedure and at such times be prepared.

But there is such a thing as too much turning of the other cheek.

Stand for justice and then be governed by conditions but don't lose your self-respect in trying to be polite and diplomatic.

You can carry this too far for your own good and self-respect.

Gospel Dialogue Features Service

Unusual Program Is Presented At Evangelistic Service In First Baptist Church

Ninety-three members of the Men's Bible class of the First Baptist church attended in a body the evangelistic services last night. Under the leadership of W. O. "Red" Williams, they made the building ring with their class song, "I Need Jesus." Other musical features were a tenor solo, "Sweet Peace," by W. O. Williams, and a number by the men's chorus.

A gospel dialogue on "Faith" was presented by the pastor, George M. Landis and Pastor Hiram H. Van Cleve of North Liberty. The large audience was intensely interested in this novel method of setting forth the gospel.

This evening a chalk talk "A Shelter in the Time of Storm," will be presented by the pastor. Owing to the illness of Owen Penfield Fox, he will be unable to do the sketching, as announced. There will be no meeting Saturday night.

Eckles Firm Lets Test Boring Work

Architects Pick Drillers To Examine P. O. Site Soil; Begins Soon

A contract for the test boring that the United States Treasury department recently authorized the W. G. Eckles company to have made at the site of the city's new post office, was awarded today to the Pennsylvania Drilling company of Pittsburgh.

The Eckles firm had been instructed to let the contract.

Work will be started on the test borings immediately in order to provide necessary information for the architects to work out the foundations for the building. Holes will be drilled at various points on the site not occupied by buildings and in some cases through the sidewalk.

Samples will be taken of the earth at different elevations so that bearing strength can be computed.

No definite word from Washington relative to the approval of the cabinet sketches of the proposed building has been received here, it was said. President Hoover's cabinet officers must place their stamp of approval on the plans before progress can be resumed.

Expect Immense Crowd At Concert Sunday

When the New Castle Civic orchestra made its debut in the Cathedral auditorium some weeks ago, New Castle music lovers were amazed that an orchestra of such merit could be assembled in such a short time. The debut concert was a splendid success, about 1800 being present in spite of adverse weather conditions.

Sunday afternoon the Civic orchestra presents its second concert of classical numbers in the Cathedral and according to Judy Sypher, director of the orchestra, this program has been assembled with the idea of appealing to the popular tastes.

Should Draw Crowd.

This second concert of the Civic orchestra should draw a crowd. It represents honest, sincere work upon the part of a group of talented musicians. They are not interested in any personal recompense for their work. They believe that the public wants good music, presented by musicians who can interpret it properly and they have banded themselves together with a highly commendable altruistic purpose.

The concert Sunday afternoon starts at 2:30 o'clock. Miss Ruth Drescher will present a group of soprano solos and Albert Traylor, organist of the First M. E. church, will preside at the Greer Memorial organ.

America can never afford to lose inspirational music. It is a national need, and no less a local need. Good music goes hand in hand with good citizenship and the fact that here in New Castle we have an orchestra of such ability should be given the courtesy of a capacity crowd.

Pastor Johnstone Will Tell Story About His Life

His Address This Evening Will Be Of A Special Interest To All

This evening, Pastor-Evangelist Charles Warren Johnstone, who has been thrilling large congregations each evening of the past four weeks with his gospel messages, which have brought many back to a realization of their religious duties in this life, will address, what is anticipated as the largest gathering of the evangelistic campaign coming to a close, on the subject of his life story.

This address, while in the nature of a lecture sermon, brings forth a lesson, that will benefit all. He will tell how he started under the "Big Tops" as circuses are known in that profession, as a mere youth and continued for twenty years in that and entertainment life, until his conversion came and he started to preach the gospel. He will discuss the life under the big top, its customs and habits, its good and its evil, its advantages and disadvantages. He will tell of his travels with circuses in foreign lands. There will be his experiences with stage shows, circus stories, animal stories, humorous stories.

There will be special musical numbers by the MacKenzie Quartette and Arthur Hulbert and a group of Pittsburgh people. Due to the anticipated crowd, only those children with their parents will be admitted.

On Saturday afternoon, he will have a special story telling service for the boys and girls unable to attend Friday night on account of the above regulation.

Family Quarrels Aid To Builders

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 19.—William E. Best makes the best of things, even when it comes to rifts between young married couples and mothers-in-laws.

Best, president of the United States Building and Loan Association, said that such family quarrels are a helpful factor to the building industry.

The "doubling up" movement, Best declared, has been carried out too far. He believes young folks who have moved in with parents during the present depression will seek homes of their own as soon as possible.

Best doesn't like to see the rifts between the newlyweds and the in-laws. But when they occur, he smiles. It all helps to fill vacant houses, thus increasing their value.

New Alarm Clock Boon Says Inventor

Will Ring From One-Half To Ninety-Five Minutes After Being Set

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 19.—The man who gave science the gas used to exterminate boll weevils has turned his genius to more prosaic things.

Dr. S. Barton Sklar has invented a new-fangled alarm clock.

Noted for his gas research and for development of the Sklar steel process, the scientist's latest invention will be a boon to housewives, chemists and physicians, it is believed.

It is so constructed that it will ring anywhere from one-half to 95 minutes from the time it is set. It will aid physicians giving sun-ray treatments, the inventor believes. It will tell the chemist his ingredients have been mixed long enough, and enable the housewife to time cooking processes.

It will, beyond doubt, be effective in rousing the deeply slumbering, for the alarm attachment has a lusty peal.

20 YEARS OF ILL HEALTH

Then Mrs. Duke Discovered Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Of her own accord, Mrs. Duke sat down and wrote us a glowing tribute to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN:

"I have been constipated all my life, which has been about 20 years, up until last year when I started eating your ALL-BRAN. Since I have been eating it, people tell me I am looking better, and I am sure that I feel a great deal better."—Mrs. L. W. Duke, 210 Hardin Ave., College Park, Ga.

Constipation is usually caused by lack of two things in the diet: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to help give them tone. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides both of these dietary necessities, as well as iron for the blood.

Within the body, the "bulk" in ALL-BRAN forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

How much more natural it is to enjoy this delicious cereal than to risk taking pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—serious cases with every meal—for most types of constipation. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Sold in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Former Sheriff Bell Expresses His Appreciation

Writes That Many Friends In This City Remembered Him On His Birthday

Recently it was announced in The News that former Sheriff Samuel W. Bell and Civil war veteran, who has been making his home for many years in San Diego, Calif., would celebrate his 90th birthday on February 13. As a result scores of his friends here sent him remembrances and best wishes and in a letter written the day following his birthday to Fred L. Rentz, he expresses his appreciation.

His letter will be of interest to all his friends and follows:

"I wish through The News to acknowledge the receipt of so many birthday cards from my New Castle friends. There is no language that I can employ that will express the joy and gratitude that I feel in knowing so many of my friends from my old home town still remember me.

"This finds me suffering with a combination of disabilities due to old age, but I am still able to go. This month is so full of patriotic doings that I cannot fill all of the demands made on me. I want to especially thank Mrs. Fred Rentz for newspaper clippings that informed me of so much news, although some made me sad as they announced the passing of some dear friends. The Pennsylvania society celebrated my birthday with angel cake, two feet long and 18 inches wide and two inches thick, quite enough to give all a piece. And now to all my New Castle friends, I again wish to express my thanks, and bid all an affectionate farewell."

Indian Prince Writes Letter To Vice President

Prince Ekuskini, Known As Eugene Gavin, Gets Prompt Reply

Prince Ekuskini, whose English name is Eugene Gavin, and who has from time to time had published in this paper items concerning the Indian inhabitants of this district prior to the coming of the white man, is located temporarily at Wampum.

In a statement to a representative of The News, he told of sending a letter recently to Vice President Charles Curtis in regard to the Chinese-Japanese trouble, in which he expressed the fear that the United States might become involved and asked the vice president to use his influence with the president and senate to keep this country out of war.

Prince Ekuskini has just received a very interesting reply from the vice president dated February 10, 1932, which is as follows:

Dear Gavin: Have your letter of recent date and think you are mistaken regarding the attitude of the United States in the Chinese-Japanese controversy. What the United States is trying to do is preserve peace rather than have war. The government has always endeavored to maintain friendly relations with other countries.

With kindest regards, I am

OYSTER NOT DUMB, SAYS BIOLOGIST

(International News Service)

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 19—An oyster is not as dumb as it seems according to Dr. A. E. Hopkins, aquatic biologist of the bureau of fisheries.

He declared that in some respects the succulent bivalve is superior to man.

"It is very probable that the oyster may get more taste of the eater than the eater gets of the oyster," Dr. Hopkins said, adding, however, that the oyster may not like the taste it gets of us as well as we like the oyster's flavor.

"In many respects the oyster is man's equal; in others it is our superior" he declared.

The sense of taste is one of the superiorities. Doctor Hopkins revealed that an oyster's taste for quinine is forty times as sensitive as a man's.

TEXAS TO BUILD OWN MUSEUM FOR MEMENTOES

DALLAS, Tex., Feb. 19.—A Texas Museum of Natural History building, architecturally, a replica of an Indian pueblo, is being planned by leaders in the relics that portray the history of the southwest.

"Many states have museums in which Texas relics are well represented, but the state itself has no repository where it can preserve for its own citizens the many relics that have played such an important part in the state's colorful history," Angus Littlejohn, secretary of the museum says.

Permanent headquarters for the organization will be established here and every section of the state will be represented on the board of directors, according to present plans.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

Mary's Lamb Is Welcomed To School

Dr. Myers Tells How Children Exhibit Their Pets

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

Gone are the forbidding days when "Mary had a little lamb." If that lamb were still alive, it would be welcomed by the teacher of today.

Recently I attended a pet show at the Cleveland School of Education where I used to teach, put on by the children of the practice school under the direction of a group of girls who are being trained to teach.

Among the pets the children brought were dogs, cats, birds, turtles, alligators, frogs. Even a pig was there. It had been thoroughly scrubbed. The first rule of the show was that every animal had to be clean and well groomed. Several snakes also were provided by the school laboratory.

For several weeks the children, together with the teacher-to-be, were made familiar with fish, amphibians, reptiles and mammals. The animals were observed and handled by the children. Even live snakes were passed from hand to hand. The pupils learned about the cow and made butter, tasting it and the buttermilk.

There were field trips to the zoo, the diary, the meat market and the Museum of Natural History. Charts were made for reading; art lessons were given during which time the children made pictures of animals, booklets and posters used in decorating their schoolroom.

Stories about animals were written. When visitors came, each pupil was eager to play the host or hostess and tell about his pet.

Back of the whole project is the celebrated naturalist, Professor William Gould Vinal, whose articles in popular magazines some of my readers may have come across.

Dr. Vinal also has inspired his young women students who are preparing to teach, to organize outside of school hours, animal clubs among school children.

One student, Mildred Freuhauf, told me, for instance, about the club for boys from 12 to 15 that she had organized. She had enlisted the interest of a librarian. Outside the library she had put up a poster with the questions, "Do toads cause warts? Do you know that some frogs hatch their own eggs in their mouths?" Twenty-three boys came to her first meeting, among them three who had been school problem boys. After a few meetings a letter came to Miss Freuhauf from the principal: "Please keep these boys in the club. The good influence is very marked."

"They just ate snakes up," Miss Freuhauf ventured to say in slang. "I had been afraid of snakes, though I didn't tell anyone of my fear. I set to work in the laboratory to overcome this fear. I won. At the club I showed the boys how to 'charm' a snake by holding it gently in one hand and covering it softly in the other. The boys wanted to do the same and did so in turn."

Most parents would accomplish much if they were able to keep from screaming and acting like maniacs when their children bring home a snake or lizard or turtle. Unfortunately we want to destroy the things we are afraid of. The first step, then, in teaching kindness to animals is to learn that they are harmless.

Scores of animal clubs have been organized in Cleveland, some in settlement houses, some in shacks, some in voting booths. But for obvious reasons, no schoolroom was chosen.

What splendid opportunities for children to observe harmless creatures without fear, to learn to be kind to animals, and to mingle with other children socially with a compelling, useful purpose. Here are many concrete suggestions for any school or any home in city, town or country.

THEY WERE TALKING ABOUT SMOKING . . . whether girls should or should not smoke; but it came out that all three of them had been smoking for a long time.

They were asking each other what made a good cigarette. And after discussing one thing and another, they agreed that a cigarette should be milder.

They thought also that it should taste just right—that is, not over-sweet, but on the other hand, not bitter—just sweet enough.

And everybody, they said, wants anything that is placed in the mouth just as pure as can be.

Then they began to think what cigarette, if any, filled this bill; and agreed that CHESTERFIELD was milder—tasted better—and was pure. The girls were satisfied, because "They Satisfy."

Miller Has Not Made Any Plans

City Engineer F. F. Miller said today he has not yet made any plans for improvements here this spring. As yet council has not determined what improvements will be made as the city's funds for improvements are very limited.

Council plans to remove the rails in the streets where street car operations were abandoned.

Probabilities are that the solons will gather around the council table informally soon and discuss what can be done with their limited funds

REPORT TWO MORE CONTAGION CASES

Dr. William L. Steen said today that two additional cases of measles have been reported. The patients are: Leah Williams, 416 Sheridan avenue, and Smedley Pyle, 7, 820 Fulkerson street.

Three Hundred And Twenty-Nine Handle Food Stuffs Here

There are at least 329 persons in New Castle engaged in the handling of foodstuffs, according to statistics of the city health bureau.

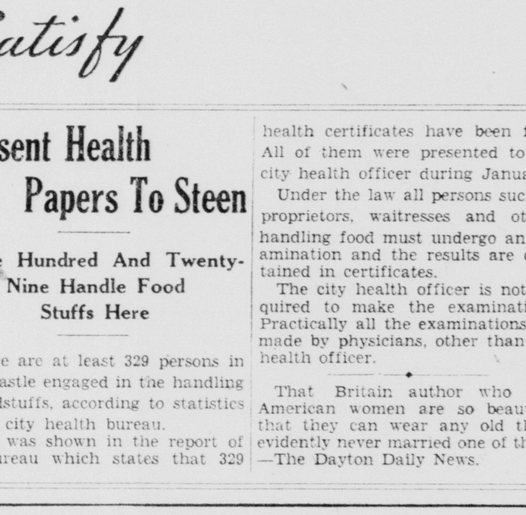

This was shown in the report of the bureau which states that 329 health certificates have been filed. All of them were presented to the city health officer during January.

Under the law all persons such as proprietors, waitresses and others handling food must undergo an examination and the results are contained in certificates.

The city health officer is not required to make the examinations. Practically all the examinations are made by physicians, other than the health officer.

A World's Record

MORE than three thousand births without a single loss of either mother or child! That is the official Piatt County record of Dr. W. B. Caldwell, in fifty years' family practise in Illinois.

No wonder mothers have such entire confidence in giving little ones Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin!

If you have a baby, you have constant need of this wonderful preparation of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh herbs. A child who gets this gentle stimulant for the stomach, liver and bowels is always healthier. It keeps children's delicate systems from clogging. It will overcome the most stubborn condition of constipation. It builds them up, and is nothing like the strong cathartics that sap their strength and energy.

A coated tongue or bad breath is the signal for a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin. Children take it readily, for it is really delicious in flavor. Taste it! Take Syrup Pepsin yourself, when sluggish or bilious, or you are troubled with sick headaches and no appetite. Take some for several days when run-down, and see how it picks you up.

It is a prescription preparation which every drug store has ready, in big bottles, just ask anywhere for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

C. T. A. REPORT

The use of which dairy records can be put is seen in the fact that members of the Lawrence County Cow Testing Association disposed of 8 unprofitable cows last month according to the report of Francis Boak, tester. There were 260 cows tested in the association last month of which 27 produced over 40 pounds of butterfat and 8 produced over 1,000 pounds of milk.

Boak reported that Snowball, a grade holstein cow belonging to Frank Fruman & Son led the association in milk production for the month of January by producing 1,446 pounds of milk. The three herds with highest milk production for the month were: W. H. McCullough, Big Beaver Township; Lauren Thompson, Wilmington Township; and Frank Fruman and Son of Beaver County.

The registered jersey herd belonging to Lauren Thompson led the association in butterfat production. This is the third consecutive month that Mr. Thompson's herd has been high in fat production. The next two herds high in butterfat were: H. L. McCurley & Son, North Beaver Township, and Arnold Bros., Beaver County.

The herd owners who own one or more cows which produced over 40 pounds of fat were:

J. W. Martin & Sons; E. C. McClelland, North Beaver Township.

Lauren Thompson; Milo Moose & Son, Wilmington Township.

Snyder & Schettig; J. A. Boak & Sons, Slippery Rock Township.

H. D. Goehring; Arnold Bros.; Frank Fruman & Son, Beaver County.

J. W. Bronson, Little Beaver Township.

W. H. McCullough, Big Beaver Township.

SIX THOUSAND CHICKS ENROLLED

H. H. Kauffman of State College discussed "Early Care of Chicks" at five poultry meetings in the county this week. Special emphasis was placed on growing healthy pullets. This matter was stressed because there are many complaints from all over the county of paralysis in birds, which, condition may be caused by intestinal parasites. The paralysis and parasites for next year can best be controlled by growing the coming pullet crop on clean ground where chickens have not ranged for the last two years.

The Extension Association has a regular system planned for this method of growing pullets. The information relative to this plan can be secured by furnishing the Association with the number of chicks you expect to raise and, the number of broods in which you expect to start them.

Circular letters will be sent monthly to the people who enroll their flocks in the project. These letters will describe different workable systems, and how to treat prevalent diseases. Brooder house record cards are also furnished. These are to be hung in the colony house and on which will be kept the mortality and other simple records.

The first of the series of meetings was held in the Plain Grove School building at which time farmers enrolled over 6,000 chicks to be raised under this system. Other meetings were held in Wilmington, Litte Beaver, North Beaver, and Washington Communities.

LIME AND LEGUME MEETINGS

E. J. Walter of State College will speak on the subject "Lime and More Legumes," at a series of meetings in Lawrence County next week.

The schedule of these meetings is as follows:

February 22, 2:00 p. m., Princeton Presbyterian Church, Slippery Rock Township.

February 22, 8:00 p. m., Mt. Jackson High School Auditorium, North Beaver Township.

February 23rd, 10:00 a. m., Home of C. S. Duff, Big Beaver Township.

February 23rd, 2:00 p. m., Pleasant Hill Grange Hall, Perry Township.

How to be reasonably assured of a stand of clover every year and what is the cheapest source of lime are points of vital interest to Lawrence County farmers at the present time. Factors relating to the answers of these questions in the minds of farmers will be discussed at this series of meetings.

BRACE TREES TO KEEP THEM FROM BREAKING

Excellent weather during the early part of winter has enabled many Lawrence County orchardists to complete their pruning work earlier than usual this year. Now other improvements can be made in the orchards.

Fruit growers throughout the county experienced severe losses last year when trees with weak crotches broke under heavy loads of fruit. Future losses can be prevented and some of the past breakage remedied by tree bracking. This is the ideal time to repair such damage.

Large branches split down from the crotch and lying on the ground can be pulled into place by using a block and tackle, then bolted at the bottom, and braced with wire 4 to 6 feet above the crotch. Other branches which have crotches of doubtful strength should be braced now at some point well up in the tree. Screw eyes or eye bolts may be turned into opposite branches, connect with No. 9 galvanized wire and tightened by twisting with a stick. One or two wires should be sufficiently strong for limbs up to 5 or 6 inches in diameter. A chain may be used instead of wire where extra strain is evident.

In some cases, wires from all the limbs are fastened to a heavy iron ring in the center. Regardless of the method, however, it is important to put these braces at least 4 to 6 feet above the crotches. If placed too low, they will be subject to too much strain.

Weak framework is typical of many orchard trees started about 20 years ago and trained to the open center type of framework. Under the present recommended system of training trees to the leader type, this difficulty may be overcome.

APHID EGGS NUMEROUS IN COUNTY ORCHARDS

Observations indicate that aphid eggs are more abundant on apple trees in Lawrence County this year than they were a year ago.

Orchards, in pruning their trees, have found large numbers of green apple aphid eggs on water sprouts and new growth. Rosy aphid eggs are prevalent on the larger limbs in the center of trees. These indicate that growers must be prepared to fight heavy infestitations of both green and rosy aphids this year.

Most effective control of aphids can be obtained in the late dormant period. A good spray consists of one pint of nicotine sulfate in 100 gallons of the regular winterstrength lime-sulfur. Where growers are applying a strictly dormant oil or lime-sulfur spray, they should use nicotine in the same proportion but only summer-strength lime-sulfur for the delayed dormant application.

Several new materials known as ovicides have been introduced as substitutes for nicotine sulfate. According to H. E. Hodgkiss, extension entomologist of the Pennsylvania State College, certain ones of these are effective against the eggs but they should be used in the strictly dormant application. He recommends that combinations said to control San Jose scale and to kill aphid eggs be used cautiously until more definite information as to their effectiveness is available.

EARLY SEEDING AIDS QUALITY AND YIELD

Good quality and heavy yield of spinach depend largely on early seeding in the spring.

In southeastern Pennsylvania some truckers seeded their spring spinach this year in January. Their regular seeding time is February. Some lettuce seed also was sown last month.

Spinach and lettuce seed are both hardy and may be sown on frozen ground prepared last fall. A light covering of manure applied with a spreader is the only protection necessary. Alternate freezing and thawing will gradually cover the seed.

Another method, which is simpler, calls for preparation of the seedbed in the fall and broadcasting the spinach or lettuce seed during a thaw when the seed becomes submerged in the mud. Since both spinach and lettuce often suffer from hot weather when planted late it is important to seed as early as possible.

FEED COWS ACCORDING TO THEIR PRODUCTION

Owing to the low price of milk it is more important than ever to feed cows according to their production.

"The margin between feed costs and milk prices is so narrow that dairymen must be very economical if they are to have a profitable business."

It is recommended that each cow's milk and grain be weighed so that she can be fed according to production. In this way some profit can be made on each pound of grain fed. The general practice is to feed one pound of grain for three pounds of milk produced by Guernseys and Jerseys and one pound of grain for 3½ to 4 pounds of milk produced by cows of other breeds. The amounts may vary slightly, however, depending on the milk test and the condition of roughage fed.

Bible Sales Are Up In Europe

Revival Of Personal Religion Is Taking Place In Old Country

PARIS, Feb. 19.—A revival of personal religion is taking place in Europe, if the increased number of sales of the Bible is an indication.

Reports from book shops and manufacturers show that the Bible has increased its annual sales in the past three years by 500,000 to nearly 3,000,000 copies.

The clergy and ministers are the most surprised by this information because the empty spaces in their church pews have not received increased patronage.

In Italy, instead of selling rosaries and pictures of saints in the streets, monks and nuns are now selling Bibles. In France, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Switzerland and Belgium, the number of books containing portions of the Scriptures sold in the past year was 1,146,210, which is 82,387 more than in 1930. The circulation of such books in Western Europe including Great Britain, has almost doubled in the last ten years.

X-Ray Pictures Depict Contents Of Exhibit Cases

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 19.—Value of x-rays in fields other than medical science is demonstrated in exhibits recently installed in the hall of Egyptian archeology at the Field Museum of Natural History.

In connection with the complete reorganization of the mummy displays, is is interesting to note that many of the specimens which are exhibited in their wrappings and cases, are accompanied by x-ray photographs giving a clear idea of the contents.

Labels and descriptive information appearing on the cases have been entirely rewritten, presenting to the public results of the latest discoveries and research about persons and events of two to four thousand years ago. During the course of this task, Dr. T. George Allen, assistant curator or Egyptian archeology, deciphered hundreds of inscriptions on ancient tablets.

Besides the mummies, the display includes a large wooden boat, believed to be nearly 4,000 years old, two huge tomb chapels and several graves and marble sarcophagi. Also of interest are numbers of garments, scultures, pottery, jewelry, weapons, and furniture which somehow survived the ravages of the centuries.

SAYS LITERATURE IS MOSTLY TRASH

(International News Service)

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Feb. 19.—"The modern novel? detestable! Magazine fiction? trash!"

And that, with a few reservations, is what Edwin Markham, dean of American poets, thinks of current "literature."

He said as much in an interview here while visiting at the home of friends.

Assailing the average twentieth century novel the poet declared that it is far below the level of Jane Austen, Thackeray, and others of the past.

"There are a few exceptions" he commented. "Edith Wharton, Galsworth—some others."

BRAKEMAN ROBBED ON MOVING TRAIN

(International News Service)

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 19.—Believe it or not, but—W. S. Bittinger, of Cumberland, Md., a brakeman for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was held up and robbed of $73 as he was working on the top of a moving box car

Bittinger, who had just cashed his pay check, was walking his "beat" over the roofs of the freight cars when two bandits suddenly appeared.

One flourished a gun, the brakeman handed over the money and both men jumped from the car and disappeared.

Green Stresses Human Equation In Inventions

Says Creative Guild Should Study Effect Of Changes Upon Worker

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19. — A great responsibility rests upon the creative guild to study and consider the effect of revolutionary industrial changes upon the worker, stressing the importance of the human equation.

This belief was stressed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter to Herman Larson, managing director of the third International Patent Exposition to be held here February 1 to 10 inclusive.

Although Green's caution was interpreted as expressing labor's attitude toward science and invention, and particularly the field of labor-saving devices, the federation president paid warm tribute to the efforts of inventors to widen the area of human control of nature and her resources.

SAYS HOODLUMS ARE ALSO COWARDS

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19.—Lack or religious training in the life of youths leads to so many entering the life of hoodlums and gangsters, and the cure for crime lies through the channels of religious training, believes Judge Harry S. McDevitt.

Judge McDevitt, who is president of common pleas court No. 1, in this city, also asserted that the way to combat the hoodlum who stalks about armed with a pistol is to buy a gun and meet him face to face with it.

"Most of these men are physical as well as moral cowards."

APPEAL BRINGS LIFE TERM

(International News Service)

MIAMI, Fla.—Edward S. Hall's objection to a fifteen-year sentence for armed robbery brought him a life sentence. Hall appealed a fifteen year sentence by Judge E. C. Collins and won a new trial. He was tried and found guilty a second time and brought before Judge Collins for pronouncement of sentence. "Life imprisonment," the judge said.

Dunlap's term will date from March 1.

Tripp Objects To His Assessment

Claims Proximity Of Business Houses Depreciates Property

Matthew Tripp, Highland avenue, today told council which met in the city building that the placing of two small shops in the vicinity of his property had resulted in property depreciation. He asked for an adjustment of the assessment. The request was referred to the city assessor for investigation.

His property is on the right side of Highland, north of Norwood avenue.

Under the zoning law Tripp is immediately outside the local business zone.

Council was informed that a permit for the placing of the small building there was in conformity with the zoning law.

Shows Photographs Of Damage To Car

Harry W. Ringer Denies He Was Responsible For Crash With Travers Car

In the case of Eleanor and Teresa Travers against Harry W. Ringer, which is on trial before Judge Hildebrand, Ringer this morning exhibited photographs of his automobile to show the jury the damage done in a collision at the corner of Butler avenue and Ray street.

Ringer denied that he was responsible for the accident, claiming that the plaintiffs were coming west on Butler avenue at a high rate of speed when he attempted to make a left hand turn into Ray street and was struck. The plaintiffs alleged that Ringer had turned into the street in front of their car and that he was responsible for the accident. Both machines were damaged in the crash. The Travers car was being driven by Oscar M. Leonhardt at the time of the accident.

Auto Damage Case Is Still On Trial

Position Of Cars Immediately Before And After Crash Outlined By Witnesses

The case of Tony and Julia Juros of Koppell against B. L. Swank of Greenville, growing out of an automobile accident in Wampum, is still on trial before Judge James A. Chambers today. It is claimed that Swank attempted to pass the Juros car, which was going South, and that as he did so, Peter Panella, was coming north. Seeing he could not pass, it is alleged that Swank pulled in and struck the Juros car, swinging it around in such a manner that Panella crashed into it. Mrs. Juros was badly injured. Testimony this forenoon, was largely on the matter of the position of the cars immediately before and after the accident. Panella claims that he was too close to stop after the Juros car had been whirled across the street in front of him.

Stranger Falls On Washington Street

Answering a call to the Public Square at the Pennsylvania Power company building to the effect that a stranger had fallen and sustained an injury of the arm, the officers answering the call found that the person falling was John McNany of Erie, who had fallen as a result of an unsteady condition due, they said, to the use of liquor.

He was taken to the police station, where it was found that his arm had been broken previously and that when he fell it was in a sling. He was otherwise uninjured and is being held at the police station to sober up. His fall occasioned considerable excitement at the time.

POLKA DOTTED TIRES TO MATCH COSTUME

(International News Service)

AKRON, O., Feb. 19.—Automobile tires made to match Milady's ensemble are the latest creation, soon to be placed on exhibit here for the first time.

Almost any color or color combination can be obtained. The new line of tires are being prepared to harmonize with the predominating automobile colors. Should they prove popular, it is expected that the various color schemes for which there is the widest demand will be placed in stock at dealers. Autoists probably could obtain special colors upon demand.

The color pigments are impregnated into the tire sidewalls by a special new process. The tread remains natural rubber color.

The new tires will not be limited to solid colors. Polka dot, mottled, stripes and modernistic patterns infinite in number are possible.

Richard Barthelmess Is Not Well Pleased With Shanghai Battle

No Messy War Like One Would Imagine, Just Nice Quiet Tame Affair

Famous Screen Star Can Hardly Realize That He Has Seen Shanghai War

By RICHARD BARTHELMESS
American Motion Picture Actor
(Written Expressly for, and Copyrighted by International News Service, 1932.)

SHANGHAI, Feb. 19—As the S. S. Empress of Japan approached the Woosung forts Thursday I was just a little bit frightened as to how I might feel in the Shanghai war area.

Now that I have been past the shell-scarred forts, stopped behind sandbags with United States Marines, and peeped through blockhouse loopholes with the light-horse troops of Shanghai volunteers, I find it hard to realize it was real and not part of a motion picture.

Those dead Chinese soldiers who have been stretched out in front of the volunteer's lines for 12 days look exactly like the dummies we use back on our Hollywood sets.

Hard To Realize

Having seen it all, instead of having been frightened I find myself astounded that in one day I could have been so close to actual war and then sail down the river by those same forts on a comfortable boat.

It is as though I had done a day's work on a picture, rather than been in the midst of a real war where bullets and shells were mowing men down within sight.

Then I returned to ponder over the map with my friend Floyd Gibbons in his room, which looked just the way I imagined a war correspondent's room should be.

Heavy read and blue slashes over many maps on the walls, indicating the Chinese and Japanese trenches, three typewriters all in use at the same time making a noise worse than the machine-gun battle I heard a short while earlier on the lines, two telephones ringing in discord and Gibbons himself in breeches, riding boots and khaki shirt open at the throat—this is what I saw.

Gibbons, just in from the Woosung front was pacing the floor and dictating a story that sounded just like one of his radio broadcasts.

My first sight of the Shanghai war area was the levelled Woosung forts, shattered Chinese villages from which smoke was rising, burned bridges over Woosung creek, and a countryside deserted except now and then for a Chinese soldier on one side of the creek and a Japanese on the other.

Eleven hours later in Shanghai I was given a farewell reception by Helen Wills Moody's (the tennis star) brother-in-law, Lieut. Joseph Moody of the United States Marines and his bride, the former Mrs. Douglas McLean.

At that moment the Chinese and Japanese heavy guns commenced their usual night firing, but American life in Shanghai went on unbothered. No wonder I leave the war area feeling as though I had done a day's work in Hollywood.

Perhaps after I have been on the boat a day or so again I will realize fully how serious a cross-section of life I have been privileged to observe.

City Had Good Health In 1931

Only 170 Cases Of Contagion Reported During Past Twelve Months

New Castle was remarkably free from communicable disease during the year 1931, according to the annual report of Dr. W. L. Steen which was presented to council at their meeting in city hall today.

According to the report, fewer cases of contagion were reported during 1931 than during any one year since the office was organized and a system of permanent records was established.

The report shows that only 170 cases of communicable disease were reported. Of this number 48 were measles and 43 mild cases of chickenpox. Scarlet fever was third high but only 22 cases were reported.

The city health officer points out that "we had only four cases of diphtheria during the entire year." He declares that this is "probably an all-time record and may never be equalled again."

He states in his report that this is an exceptionally good record in view of there being a school attendance of 12,000 pupils and cites the fact that 1931 was the sixth year in which the city was free of smallpox.

The hick town, if there is one left, is where the Prominent Citizen breathed hard when he received his comic valentine.—The Minneapolis Journal.

MILK BACTERIA DETERMINED BY HEALTH OFFICER

"Many people do not understand the meaning of the number of bacteria in milk. It is the way we measure the amount of dirt in the milk. Bacteria live and grow on the small particle of dirt and while we cannot measure the dirt we can count the bacteria."

This is the opening paragraph in the report of Dr. W. L. Steen, city health officer in dealing with the examination of milk conducted during January when 40 samples of milk sold here was examined.

"Good clean milk should contain less than 25,000 bacteria per c.c. Milk that contains more than 100,000 bacteria is classed insanitary, unwholesome and its sale here is prohibited" the report declares.

The health officer's report shows a table of milk examined for bacteria last month. The names of the dealers arranged alphabetically and the results in the report are shown as follows:

Michigan Robber Is Shot To Death

Two Companions Surrender To Detectives After Killing Of Pal

(International News Service)

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 19.—Believed by police to have been one of the robbers who held up five lower Michigan and Indiana gasoline stations Wednesday, a man tentatively identified as James Larkin, 40, of Horton, Mich., was killed by detectives here Thursday when he and two companions resisted arrest.

Harley Drushel, 26, Marshall, Mich., and C. M. Meyer, Albion, Mich., surrendered after Larkin was shot.

Drushel confessed the robberies, police said and also admitted the trio planned to robe the Hudson, Mich., bank.

Plan To Re-Open Soft Coal Mines

(International News Service)

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 19.—Work will begin Monday, it was announced Thursday, to put the Davidson and Trotter mines into shape for immediate reemployment of 700 men by the Yough-Connellsville Coal and Coke Company.

Resumption of operations at the mines, both long idle, was arranged by a sales agreement with the North American Fuel Corporation for sale of about 4,000 tons daily.

SNOW IN SIERRAS HANDICAPS LIFE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 19.—Extremely heavy Sierra snows have proven a handicap for California wild life this winter.

Near Quincy recently a herd of deer was forced to lower levels in search of food. The herd was struck by a passenger train and five were killed.

A flock of 75 mallard ducks was forced down by a heavy blizzard on the 8,000-foot level. The wild fowl were discovered floundering in heavy drifts by Mike Ostini and Joe Dellera, two mail carriers.

FORTY NINE CASES REPORTED LAST MONTH

There were 49 cases of contagion reported to the city health report department during the month of January, according to a report of Dr. W. L. Steen which will be submitted to council at their meeting Friday morning.

Chickenpox cases numbered 22 and measles, 17. The balance of the 49 consisted of whooping cough, erysipelas and scarlet fever.

Why light the front of your house and leave the back in darkness?

THE average city home is lighted in front by street lights, and with porch or entrance lamps besides But in many cases the back door and garage—and the entire back yard—are left in total darkness.

Why grope between your house and garage, or stumble over objects in the garden, when it is so easy to enjoy convenient, economical light? And besides, why encourage the marauders that work under cover of darkness? (Police records show that practically all housebreakers enter through dark back doors and windows.)

See your own electric dealer. He will recommend the proper type of fixture to light the back of your house.

Edmunds Seeks Information On Soldier's Plot

Several Buried In Greenwood Cemetery Plot Who Are Unidentified

WILL MARK GRAVES WITH FEDERAL STONES

County Graves Registrar, Thomas Edmunds, is seeking information relative to the date of birth, death, and further history of those soldiers buried in the Soldier's Plot at Greenwood cemetery.

This information is sought in order that the graves may be properly marked by United States Government headstones.

Many of the graves have only the name of the soldier on a small footstone. There are two, which are unidentified, while two have only the names of the soldiers inscribed thereon.

The rest contain the names of the soldier and what outfit he served with during the Civil War, but do not contain the date of death and other information which is needed to properly identify the soldier buried there.

Edmunds has found innumerable graves of deceased veterans throughout the county, on which very little information can be obtained. He expects to publish the names of the soldiers who are buried at these various cemeteries so that relatives or other persons having information which will assist in compiling the records required by the county and state, can find out where these soldiers are buried and assist in the work of having their graves properly registered.

The names of those buried at Greenwood cemtery, in the soldiers plot, about whom further information is desired, follows:

Josiah Kellar, J. J. McGown, Gilman Branch, J. S. Van Gorder, Co. K., 100th Regiment, P. V. I.; John Hoover, Co. K, 100th Regiment, P. V. I.; John Sheppard, Co. H. 14th Regiment, P. V. I.; Andrew Compton, Co. E., First Tennessee Light Artillery; Andrew Wait, Co. A., 76th Regiment, P. V. I.; Samuel Coulter, Co. F., 137th P. V. I. Two unidentified graves.

Charles Young, Co. H., 77th Regiment, P. V. I.; Lewis C. McCreary, Co. G, First Regiment, Penna Light Artillery; Edward Robinson, James Bernard, James Henderson, Co. K., 100th Regiment, P. V. I.; J. R. Longacre, D. H. Edwards, Co. H., 23rd Regiment, Ohio Vol., Inf.; Two graves marked J. B. and J. K.; John Young, Co. F., 76th Reg. P. V. I.; D. C. H. Andrews, Co. K., 8th Regiment, P. V. I. and Samantha McCreary.

It is possible that complete information will never be obtained on some of these men, but somewhere in Lawrence County, it is believed are persons who know something of these men and their history.

Patriotic Night Observed By P. H. C.

Interesting Program Is Presented—Attorney Shumaker Is Guest Speaker

In the history of New Castle Circle No. 5, Protected Home Circle no more interesting program was ever presented "for the good of the order," than when on Wednesday night Patriotic night was observed by the local circle, only matters of the most important was cared for at a brief business session and with Helen Ray, Guardian of the circle the splendid program opened with singing America. The guest speakers of the evening were Attorney Alvah M. Shumaker, who's subject was on the life of George Washington. And State Deputy M. M. Henlien of Erie, who's address was based upon the life of Abraham Lincoln gifted with a fine platform presence and personal magnitism the discourse from Attorney Shumaker was a wonderful piece of eloquent oratory and he held the closest attention of his listeners until his too briefly closed remarks. As a public speaker Deputy Henlein needs no introduction, many years of his life were spent in New Castle as a boy and he is always a welcome guest in the circle chamber. His remarks on Lincoln, like these of the former speaker, were rewarded with the applause these gentlemen deserved.

Another feature of the program was the delightful vocal numbers contributed by Mrs. Murl Boyd, one of New Castle's finest sopranos of few equals. Mrs. Boyd was never in better voice and her solo work gave evidence of a wonderful voice under perfect control as she rendered Columbia the Gem of the Ocean, and the Star Spangled Banner, with the entire circle joining the chorus. Mrs. Boyd was accompanied by Mrs. Hazel Hicks. The excellent vocal solos contributed by Glenn Evans was another big feature and Elmer Frey, his accompanist certainly knows his piano.

This first program of a series in the circle was a decided success in every manner and closed with the entire body singing, Onward Christian Soldiers.

Later at beautifully appointed tables appropriate to the event, a tasty lunch was served by the Guardian and her committee and Patriotic night stood adjourned. An excellent program is now in progress for the next regular session of the circle, which will be observed as Past-Presidents night.

LILLIE B. JONES, Secretary.

Play Director Spends Day Here

William Kay Martin Visits Parents In New Castle On Thursday

William Kay Martin, son of Attorney Harvey E. Martin and wife of Park avenue, this city, who has been with the John B. Rodgers Producing company for the past six years as play director, called here for a short time Thursday.

Mr. Martin and his wife have been directing a play at Walden, Mass., near Boston, and left there Wednesday morning to drive to Girard, O. He found the roads in Massachusetts and New York state very icy on Wednesday and had to drive very slowly for about 200 miles and in Massachusetts saw one car ahead of him slide off the road and go down over the mountain, the driver being killed.

He spent Wednesday night at Troy, Pa., and Thursday morning ran into a blizzard near Coudersport and the snow was about 1½ feet deep. West of Kane the roads were clear and he arrived here at 3 p. m.

Mr. Martin is producing a play at Girard, O., for the K. of P. of that place. He expects to go from Girard to Elizabeth, N. J., to direct a musical comedy called "The Song". The play at Girard is a minstrel.

Seats Involved In Case Were For Ritz

Victor Theatre Had No Connection With Controversy Just Disposed Of

In the item published Thursday with regard to the case of the American Seating company against Catherine Patterson and others, in which the former concern was awarded a verdict against the defendants, it was stated that the seats over which the controversy occurred had been purchased for the Victor theatre.

This is a mistake, as the occurrence causing the legal controversy happened over seats purchased for the former Nixon theatre by Messrs. Max Cransfield and T. B. Connor, who when they leased and remodeled the former Nixon theatre, changed the name to The Ritz. This was some time previous to the opening of the Victor theatre as it is now known and under the present management and which is in no way involved in the case just decided.

Badly Fitting Shoes And Stockings Cause Corns

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Corns are humble examples of disease—too unimportant to engage the attention of most surgeons, specialists, or even general practitioners. Yet they cause more grief than appendicitis and typhoid fever together. They even have potential ties of danger and fatality.

It is almost safe to say that a surgeon is great in proportion to how much he knows about corns. One of the most accomplished surgeons of my acquaintance writes as follows: "This lowly affection presents one of the sensitive points of contact in modern civilization. Laughed at or trod upon, it may sever ties of life-long friendship. Therefore, when brought to us it should excite in us our gravest concern and receive our most solicitous attention."

Corns are caused by badly fitting shoes.

Never by tight shoes.

They result from the friction of the inside of the shoe over the skin.

Also by socks and stockings. What fiend out of hell it was who invented the loom upon which most modern socks and stockings are woven has been wisely concealed. The strands of the sock are gathered into the foot and sewed across the toe with knots on the inside opposite the most sensitive spots on earth—on the tip of the toes and over the base of the heel.

For people who are subject to corns, socks or stockings made of heavier material—soft wool—and reconstructed by loving hands at home so that the knots which feel as if they were the size of small watermelons, are eliminated, will give much comfort, winter and summer.

If the sufferer with corns can possibly scrape enough money together, get shoes made to order. I have said so before, and I say so again, that it is far more important to have shoes made to order to fit perfectly than to have clothes made to fit perfectly.

There is another factor in the production of corns besides the irritation from improper footwear. Indeed, the book of an old chiropodist, which is full of practical wisdom, states unequivocably that many corns are hereditary and familial in character. He cites the cases of a woman who had some very obstinate and painful corns, and who brought him five of her children all of whom had corns on the same place on the little toe.

This simply means that certain kinds of skin produce callosities with more ease than others when subjected to the causative irritation.

IMPROVED HEALTH

Ten Herbs, the well-known medicine for relief of disorders of the stomach, kidneys and bowels has had marvelous success in helping thousands of former sufferers.

"I had stomach trouble for over five years and could not eat many things I liked on account of the miserable after effects," said Mr. George L. Wilson, Renfrew, Pa. "I had indigestion after eating and a gas and belching condition would follow. Constipation troubled me for years and I never seemed to get the right relief. I had severe cases of "heartburn" and I could not sleep well. My kidneys were in bad condition causing backache and exhaustion. I started taking Ten Herbs and my stomach is in the best of condition. I am rid of indigestion and can eat now without having gas or belching. I am not troubled with constipation and the pains have left my back. I sleep fine and get up in the morning feeling rested. I am certainly thankful for the wonderful good Ten Herbs has done me."

Ten Herbs is sold at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 E. Washington St., and by all leading druggists throughout this entire section.

ONE SOAP that does the work of TWO

Everything in your wash—fine things or heavy things—can be washed quickly and safely with this one soap.

SAFE FOR FINE THINGS
Chipso is safe as rain-water for silks, woolens—and your hands.

QUICK FOR DIRTY THINGS
Chipso makes clothes as white—washes as fast—as strong powdered soaps; and it's safer.

Perhaps you know about Chipso. Millions of women do. But it is possible that you haven't used Chipso lately. And so you may have missed the newest, greatest improvement in a modern laundry soap.

Those thicker creamier suds tell you here's something new in soaps! But not until you put these suds to work do you learn how different Chipso is from other soaps.

Chipso takes dirt out faster—yet it washes delicate things so that the original life and color are preserved!

Chipso is the one soap which really does the work of two. No need now to use harsh soaps that fade clothes and wear them out before their time. Chipso's extra suds "stand up" to a heavy washing and dissolve out the most stubborn dirt. Towels come out snowy; grimy play-clothes are spotless. Yet Chipso suds are as gentle as rain to fine things.

How handy to use one soap for everything washable. No need now to sort out silk underwear, your nice linens, the children's print frocks, for special washing with a special soap. Just wash your fine things in Chipso's velvety rain-soft suds. Then if you need, add a little more quick-dissolving Chipso, and use the same suds for heavy things. You'll save time. You'll save work.

Your hands prove Chipso's safety

Try Chipso for your dishes for a few days—your hands will be so smooth and soft you'll know that Chipso suds are as gentle as rain.

Remember—a soap that roughens your hands will be hard on your clothes . . . But when you use Chipso, even heavy cottons wear longer and stay brighter. Ask your grocer for Chipso, it comes in the same blue boxes, but inside it is better than ever.

HAVE YOU TRIED CHIPSO LATELY?

"QUICK as lightning, GENTLE as rain"

Order Salesman Held For Bribe

Secretary Beamish Says Voting Machine Salesman Offered Him $20,000

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 19. — Charging bribery, a warrant was issued Thursday for the arrest of George O'Brien, former Philadelphia newspaperman, who, Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish asserted, offered him a $20,000 bribe in connection with a vote machine contract.

"The public welfare demands that the affair be cleaned up," declared Karl E. Richards, crusading Dauphin county district attorney.

The warrant, issued by Alderman John P. Hallman, alleged O'Brien had offered Secretary Beamish the money to award a contract for vote machines in Philalephia to the Shoup Voting Machine company.

In a letter to the district attorney today, Deputy Attorney General S. R. O'Hara indicated any prosecution of the case was left to the discretion of county authorities.

Conviction on bribery charges is punishable under state law by a one year penitentiary sentence and fine of $500 as a maximum.

MONEY IN SMOKE MAY BE SAVED

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 19.—By growing a metallic skin on some alloys and giving others gas baths, a tidy fortune can be saved to American industry.

This fortune is the present loss of millions of dollars worth of metal now going up in smoke from furnace chimneys. The discovery of the skin and the gas bath methods of saving at least part of this loss was made public today by the department of engineering research of the University of Michigan.

The experiments have been under way for three years. They were sponsored by several of the large utilities companies of the Middle West.

The results are reported by Dr. Clair Upthegrove, professor of metallurgical engineering, and A. J. Herzig, formerly research associate at the university. All the research was done upon brass, the industry in which non-ferrous metals are most expensively used in producing alloys. Most of the furnaces used gas.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 19—Andrew W. Mellon, ambassador to Great Britain will not go to the Republican National convention in Chicago as a delegate-at-large from Pennsylvania, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph said in a story published today.

Before he leaves for the Court of St. Jame's in about three weeks, Mr. Mellon will announce his withdrawal as a candidate for delegate, Mark Shields, political editor of the Sun-Telegraph, said in his article. The former secretary of the treasury, the Sun-Telegraph said, was slated for delegate in a conference between state Republican chairman Edward Martin and leaders of the Philadelphia organization.

Needed In London

"Mr. Mellon is understood to have said" acording to Shields' story, "that his duties in London will be just reaching the peak of their importance at the date set for the convention and that it would be prejudicial to important financial adjustments which will be under consideration by the United States, England, France and Italy for him to return to this country at that time.

"Rather than retain the delegateship under those conditions which would leave his alternate to serve in his stead, Mr. Mellon has decided to step aside prior to the primary. . .It was his own suggestion that another man be slated in his place. . .And it is possible the nomination may be kept in the Mellon family, one state leader having suggested. . The place be offered to W. L. Mellon, nephew of the ambassador and former Republican state chairman. . .

The fact that A. W. Mellon will remain in England cannot, by the farthest stretch of the imagination, be laid to any coolness between himself and President Hoover. No matter what the circumstances under which the secretary withdrew from the treasury and accepted an appointment to the diplomatic corps."

TO HONOR HELEN KELLER'S TUTOR

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19.—Despite her protestations that "It is a valuation of me to which I do not feel my education is commensurate," Mrs. Anne Sullivan Macy, tutor to Miss Helen Keller, famous blind student, will be awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters at the mid-year commencement exercises at Temple University.

Mrs. Macy declined the honor last February but upon a motion by Gov. Gifford Pinchot, who received an honorary degree at that time, the audience acclaimed Mrs. Macy as highly deserving of the honorary degree.

President Charles E. Beury of Temple will make the award.

NOTHING TOO GOOD

Doctor: "Your daughter is anemic. She must take iron."

Millionaire: "No iron for my daughter—I can afford gold or platinum."

Nervous, No Appetite . . . Dull and Listless

Hazleton, Pa.—For about two months my daughter Helen, age 11, was in a run-down condition, her appetite was poor and she became dull and listless," said Mrs. Wm. Yocum of Helen Yocum 418 W. 9th St. "Helen appeared very nervous and complained of headaches. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery built her up wonderfully; helped her stomach, improved her appetite and she no longer was troubled with nervousness or headaches."

Mayberry's

Glorified Buddy

Though he has starred in many film romances, Charles (Buddy) Rogers only recently made his debut in a major stage production. He is shown taking time out from "Hotcha," latest musical comedy staged by Florenz Ziegfeld, to strum a little tune for Revva Reyes, one of the principals in the show, which has just opened at Washington, D. C.

Mayor Coxey, Of "Army" Fame Is Swamped By Mail

Both Commendation And Criticism In Letters Secured

(International News Service)

MASSILLON, O., Feb. 19.—From all parts of the United States and even from Soviet Russia, letters are flooding the office of "General" Jacob S. Coxey, veteran leader of two unemployed marches to Washington since he became Massillon's mayor.

Praise is intermingled with criticism in the hundreds of communications which pour in from persons who have read of Coxey's first political triumph.

Some of the letters request information about his "money-at-cost" plan for which he has unceasingly worked for 38 years and upon which platform he was elected mayor. A few of the letters request aid of some kind or another.

One of the "General's" severest critics was the Rev. Isaac B. Harper of the First Methodist church here who denounced the mayor's inaugural address—the first ever made by a Massillon mayor, by the way—because Coxey neglected to sufficiently declare his purpose to better the morals in this city.

Some of the praise and criticism is predicated upon Coxey's program to "protect citizens against unwarranted search and seizure" and his stern opposition to pay cuts at city hall. Coxey has provided that anyone wishing to give information against law violators must first swear to the violation at city hall before a warrant will be sworn out.

Delaware County Has Five Courts

State's Third Smallest District, Has Record Number Of Law Cases

(International News Service)

MEDIA, Pa., Feb. 19.—History making events dot the past of Delaware county, the state's third smallest in area, but one of the largest in population, and the busy little center continues to thrive and make history.

Noted as the undisputed landing place of William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, the county also was the scene of the battle of Brandywine, and it was here that the first state assembly gathered, the old court house in Chester where the meeting was held bearing strong resemblance of colonial days.

Recently, seven judges convened here to handle the flood of cases arising. On January 25 the county will have five common pleas courts for the ensuing four weeks.

MEASLES REPORTED DURING DECEMBER

There were 37 cases of measles reported from the rural districts of Lawrence county in December, information from the Bureau of Vital Statistics, Pennsylvania Department of Health reveals. Few other cases of contagion were found.

In addition to the above there was one case of diphtheria, one of scarlet fever and none of typhoid fever or whooping cough.

Deaths from leading causes showed two from tuberculosis, three from cancer, and five from cerebral hemorrhage in November, 1931.

SINGER TURNS SMITH AFTER REVOLUTION

BOSTON, Mass. Feb. 19—Giuseppe Gozzi, who once sang baritone parts with opera companies in Italy and Mexico, is a blacksmith at a Brighton iron foundry.

One night after he had sung a leading part in Pagliacci in Mexico City, a revolution broke out in the country and the theaters were closed. He forsook opera for blacksmithing, which he had learned from his father. Gozzi, who is 34, adds to his blacksmith's pay by singing at dinners and other social functions.

For the sake of the human race's spiritual future the ecclesiasts of all denominations should immediately hold a convocation to determine where the radio crooners are going to spend the hereafter.—The Newark Evening News.

Chinese Trying To Make Japan Shoulder Blame

Claim Made That Chinese Are Firing Upon Some Sections Of Settlement

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Feb. 19.—The foreign office announced this afternoon that Chinese forces in Shanghai are being encouraged to fire directly upon the international settlement as a result of the reported stand of the American state department holding Japan responsible for any loss of American life or property caused by her side as long as Japan uses the settlement as a base for military operations.

Note is Denied.

Washington reports denied that Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson was contemplating a note to Tokyo to this effect, but the foreign office clung to an official dispatch from Ambassador Debuchi in Washington asserting it.

Word from Shanghai of the unofficial Chinese rejection of the Japanese ultimatum to withdraw their forces 12½ miles northeast of the settlement prepared Tokyo for the delayed big battle.

To Drive Chinese Back.

Regarding this the foreign office announced that the Japanese forces would act in Shanghai as they did at Chinchow, Tsitsidar, Angangchi and Harbin: that is, the Japanese would drive the Chinese back, without declaring war, if they showed no signs of withdrawing by 7 a. m. Saturday, Shanghai time.

Japan will answer the League of Nations warning prepared by the council of 12 on Monday, it was announced.

REPAIR GAS PUMP

Erie railroad workmen from Sharon today repaired a gas pump located on a siding of the company's right-of-way in the rear of the West Side P. & L. E. passenger station.

The original free wheeling device, despite all claims of rival manufacturers, was an upturned thumb.—The Hamilton (Ont.) Spectator.

A good sound rule to follow in choosing smart accessories for the ensemble is to consider the underlying principles that govern the current silhouette and then apply them to the little things of fashion, declares Lucien Lelong. Abstracts Of Title To Post Office Land Sent

Are Mailed To United States Attorney In Pittsburgh Today

Abstracts of the record of title to the lands which are being purchased by the United States Treasury Department as a site for the new post office here, are being mailed to federal attorneys in Pittsburgh today and will be forwarded by them to the Treasury Department for their approval.

The abstracts cover a number of sheets of paper and show the ownerships of the property from the time it was given to John C. Stewart by patent, as part of a tract of 400 acres, to the present time.

The work of preparing the abstract took some time as it was necessary to check against each parcel to determine whether there were any encumbrances of any nature against the properties. This required a considerable length of time and necessitated search among the records in Mercer county.

Although the deeds to the property were delivered some time ago, no money has been paid over to the owners awaiting certification of the title. If this is approved, the government is expected to pay over the purchase money in a short time now, and will make further arrangements for letting the contract for the new structure.

Takes Food To Edenburg Folks

Through the Rescue Mission, ten gallons of milk and two gallons of soup were furnished Mrs. Katherine Lyons, state nurse to distribute among needy families at Edenburg.

According to Mrs. Lyons, these people were desperately in need of assistance and apparently have been overlooked in the distribution of help.

Easter Forecast

The first of the Easter fashions to make its bow, this chic hat and suit combination conveys the glad piquancy of the spirit of Spring. The suit is of ribbed velvet, with a new style note struck by the shape of the sleeves, which puff just below the elbow. The hat is of brown straw with a white velvet crown.

$25,000 Toothache

Following a full week's trial in the Suffolk, Mass., Superior Court, Mrs. Catherine C. Bennett, of Brighton, has been awarded the sum of $25,000 for the loss of her jawbone as the result of a tooth extraction. Mrs. Bennett, who is 29 and the mother of three children, charged she was infected with acute osteomyelitis following alleged negligent dental treatment.

Divorce Judge Has Secret Of Marital Bliss

Gives Some Pointers For Married People In Statement

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 19.—Judge Lile T. Jacks, who hears an average of four divorce cases per day, has his own theory of this happy marriage business. He sums it up, "Look before you leap."

"Sensible men and women wouldn't think of buying real estate without investigating the title and yet they will often marry someone whom they met at a party, or week-end in the country," he said. "It's all very romantic to take a husband, or a wife at face value, but usually this sort of blind romance ends happily only in the movies.

He offered these sugestions for those already married:

The home should never become rigidly regulated by routine.

Neither husband, nor wife, should break off earlier friendships or surrender any special interest. They cannot grow if each does not develop seperately.

The one, who has the most leisure, should relieve the other from time-consuming duties.

The checking account should be in names of both. Affection cannot reach a high level if the husband assumes financial guardianship.

The wife should never make insulting remarks about the salary of the husband. He is doing the best he can.

They should be fortified against any suggestion of social rivalry or copying more affluent friends.

There must be a genuine respect for the personality and rights of each.

TOBACCO MAKES ZOO DEER THRIVE

(International News Service)

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 19.—While some animals thrive on chewing tobacco at the municipal zoo others are eating nothing, a survey at the zoological gardens revealed.

The tobacco is fed to a doe deer and her faun, the latter now five months old. The animals, according to the zoo keepers, thrive on the "weed."

Meanwhile, the alligators are on their winter fast. They haven't eaten for two or three months and won't partake of food until early in May, it was said.

Other freak menus for the captive animals are listed here. The bears like pie and apples, the coyote gets turkey and meat bones and the monkey is fed oranges.

DIED BY WOODEN BULLET

(International News Service)

TOLEDO, Ohio.—A wooden bullet he is believed to have whittled himself was used by E. G. Thomas, 62, an engineer, to kill himself, detectives of the homicide squad said after examining the death weapon. As no wooden projectiles are manufactured by munition firms, detectives believe Thomas made the nose of the bullet.

Jesus The Good Shepherd

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Jehovah is my shepherd; I shall not want.—Ps. 23:1.

By ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson for February 21 is John 10:1-4, the Golden Text being Psalm 23:1. "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.")

The background of all that Jesus says of himself as the Good Shepherd is found in the incident of the man born blind whose healing was the basis of our study last week.

When the former blind beggar gave the credit for his marvelous healing to Jesus, the Pharisees, his spiritual shepherds, tried to silence him. When the man persisted "they cast him out." Then we read "Jesus heard that they had cast him out: and when he had found him, he said unto him, Dost thou believe on the Son of God?" Hearing of the man's becoming an outcast for Christ's sake, Jesus evidently searched for him until he found him. And having found the man to whom the church's door had been officially closed by its false leadership, Jesus offered him a new fellowship with himself as the Son of God. To the false guides of the people, who had thus closed the door of privilege, Jesus said most emphatically: "Verily, verily, I say unto you. I am the door of the sheep. . . . I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture. . . He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber. . . The thief cometh not, but for a steal, and to kill and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

A Shepherd to the Sheep

In contrast with their heartless and destructive treatment of the man they had excommunicated and left to perish spiritually, Jesus set forth himself in the role of the Good Shepherd: "I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. But he that is an hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth. . . The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep. I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine."

The blind man healed proved himself a true sheep of the true and good shepherd by following Jesus and forsaking the false leadership of the spiritual hirelings: "A stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers."

The Shepherd's Test

Jesus' right to the claim of "Good Shepherd" is given its supreme test in his willingness to lay down his life for the sheep. And Jesus meets this test in his death on the cross, proving that his shepherdhood is not a mere figure of speech, but actually expressive of his whole mission in the world "to seek and to save that which was lost." "I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep."

CLAIM ONE HURT IN 3,369,559 MILES

(International News Service)

DALLAS, Tex., Feb. 19.—A total of 5,582 trips, traveling a total of 3,369,559 miles with only one injury was the substance of the report of the southern division of American the lone injury referred to a pilot who suffered a small cut over one eye when he bumped his head.

KEPT SECRET 21 YEARS

(International News Service)

NUERNBERG.—On his deathbed George Bischof, 75, an esteemed manufacturer, confessed to a police captain he had called to his room that he had murdered his brother-in-law, Peter Geisinger, 21 years ago. The murder caused a sensation. Police found the body in a swamp. At no time was Bischof even suspected, and the crime went down on the books as unsolved. "If you would have caught someone and sent him up for my crime, I should have confessed," the dying man told the police. "But since no innocent life was in danger I thought I'd continue to live a useful life."

Lashed for Movie Rowdyism

Arrested on the complaint of a theatre manager, who charged that they frequently annoyed the audience during performances, Norman Redfield, 15 (left), and Franklin Heiser, 16 (right), both of Woodbury, N. J., were haled before Recorder Frank L. Johnson, who sentenced them to ten lashes each. The boys' parents were present in court and agreed with the Recorder that they deserved spanking, volunteering to do it at home. But Judge Johnson wanted to be sure that his judgment was carried out, so he ordered the sentence carried out in court, a 200-pound police sergeant using the strap. William Elliot, 12, also took the count of ten.

New Document Sheds Light On Vikings Warfare 1,000 Years Ago

(International News Service)

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 19.—A document throwing light on the warfare of the Swedish Vikings a thousand years ago has been published here.

The Swedish Viking expeditions eastwards are known to have reached as far as Constantinople and the Mediterranean by way of the large Russian plains and rivers. A recently discovered old Arabic document, however, dating from about the year 1030 and written by Ibn Miskawaich, an Arabian philosopher and historian, sheds a new light on Swedish trading and warfare in the Caspian Sea in the 10th century.

This report gives evidence that in the year 943 a Swedish Viking fleet landed in Azebeidjan, from where the Vikings immediately marched to the Moslem city of Berda's, which they conquered. They proclaimed that they did not bother about religion of the inhabitants as long as they recognized the government of their new rulers.

The rich citizens acquiesced but the mob revolted. Then the Vikings gave the inhabitant three days' respite to leave the city on condition they did not take their money and valuables with them. The exodus began, but on the fourth day riots still occurred.

A terrible revenge followed, the report says. When the slaughter was ended about 10,000 survivors were given a chance to buy their freedom. The ransom was paid, and a period of relative peace following until a Moslem chieftain Marzuban, having gathered powerful troops, attacked the city.

Despite the superior numbers of the Mahometans the Swedes were victorious in every battle, and Marzuban had to give up the siege. Shortly afterwards climatic fevers reduced the number of the Northern invaders, forcing them to leave the city but bringing with them immense treasures and many new wives.

Of this Viking expedition nothing has been found in Swedish records but there are Swedish rune stones telling of a similar military venture carried out one hundred years later by Ingvar the Traveller from the Swedish province of Soedermanland. It is interesting to note that Ibn Miskawaich, despite his bias, cannot refrain from admiring the stoicism in face of danger and the sacredness of pledges observed by the Swedish Vikings, who were not only warriors but also international traders.

LONE KINGFISHER IS LOYAL TO OLD WINSTED

(International News Service)

WINSTED, Conn., Feb. 19—Winter is here and summer visitors have gone—except one, a kingfisher.

At Highland lake, one of Connecticut's coldest spots, the lone kingfisher remains, oblivious of zero weather and the lack of companionship, swooping down daily from a favorite pole to nab fish which venture near the surface in the belief that all kingfishers and other migratory birds have gone to Palm Beach for the season.

Not that Winsted inhabitants are surprised that the bird is spending the winter here. Kingfishers have defied the area's frigid blasts in previous years.

Sees Major Move Starting From Present Crisis

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Out of every economic crisis has come at least one forward step for the advancement of humanity—that of a major educational movement.

This Professor William Chandler Bagley said to members of the faculty and the student body at Columbia University has been revealed by studies conducted by Professor Edgar W. Knight.

Already Prof. Bagley added, such a movement promises to arise from the present period.

Dr. Bagley traced the parallelism of 1837, the 70's and the 90's with the subsequent work of Horace Mann and the development of free common schools and the high schools throughout the United States.

"There is a possibility," Dr. Bagley said, "that periods of economic depression, like other forms of adversity, have their uses. It may be that, in troubled times, men and women ponder more seriously on the problems of human betterment and think sooner or later of what education can do to insure their advancement. It may be that out of the present critical period may emerge another forward movement leading to a greatly increased recognition and emphasis of the spiritual values."

PLANETARIUM FOR PHILA.

(International News Service)

MUNICH.—A local firm has finished a planetarium for the Franklin Museum in Philadelphia. It shows the passage of a solar year in a half hour, and of a month in 2½ minutes. An idea of the complexitiy of the mechanism can be gained from the fact that more than 100 small wheels are required to show the movements of Saturn and its eight moons alone. Similar planetariums, of the same pattern as the Copernicus planetarium in the German Museum at Munich, have been made for Buffalo, Spain and Scotland.

Cites Dangers Of Militarism

Temple University Head Says Strong Armies Invite Tests At Arms

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19.—"A long time will have passed before the destructive process of competitive militarism will cease," is the opinion of Dr. Charles E. Beury, president of Temple University.

That is, "unless the United States as the most powerful and least vulnerable of nations, is willing to assume leadership, and take the risk of that leadership."

Dr. Beury asserted that 70 per cent of government tax receipts are now expended to pay for past, present and future wars, in expressing views on international relations in a radio address delivered under the auspices of the Women's International league for peace and freedom.

Armies, Dr. Beury declared, are needed for police service, but "not such armies as invite contests and a trial at arms."

Jesus, the Good Shepherd — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—John 10:1-42

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

When the former blind beggar gave credit for his marvelous healing to Jesus, his spiritual shepherds, the Pharisees, cast him out. Jesus offered the man a new fellowship with himself as the Son of God. To the false guides of the people, Jesus said: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep. . . . I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture."

The hireling fleeth, because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep. I am the good shepherd and know my sheep, and am known of mine." The blind man healed proved himself a true sheep of the good shepherd by following Jesus and forsaking the false leadership of the spiritual hirelings. "A stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of strangers."

Jesus' right to the claim of "Good Shepherd" is given its supreme test in his willingness to lay down his life for the sheep. And Jesus meets this test in his death on the cross, proving that his shepherdhood is not a mere figure of speech. It actually is expressive of his whole mission in the world—"to seek and to save that which was lost." "I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for his sheep."

Tattoo Trade Bucks Slump, Expert Says

Cuts Down Prices And Manages To Get Along Fairly Well

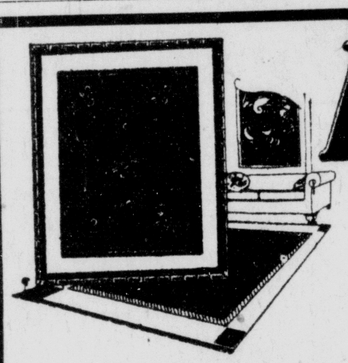

BOSTON, Feb. 19—Take it from dad the tattoo trade is bucking the depression as well as any other established business.

Dad is the professional name of E. W. Liberty, rotund, veteran wielder of the tinted needle, with quarters in a bootblack parlor on the rim of Boston's rialto.

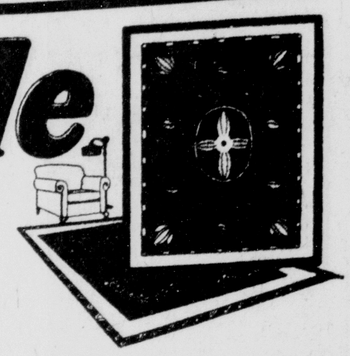

"My profits have fallen off about 10 to 15 percent," said Dad. "But I can't kick. I'm making a living. I sliced prices as much as 75 percent when things got tough. In this way I kept most of my old customers and got some new ones."

A few "big" jobs have helped this glorifier of the manly arm to keep in the black ink. "For instance," Dad declared, "take that fellow C. E. Church, whose tattooed back is shown in the framed picture on the wall. I put about 700 designs on him, from toes to neck. They've just won him a circus contract. It took me two years to finish the job. That 'Madonna and child' by Siceel that covers his entire back took four months alone."

Dad has used his art to tattoo imitation eyebrows on persons lacking them. Not long ago he tattooed imitation hair on the head of a Massachusetts Institute of Technology instructor who was burned in a chemical laboratory explosion.

Nautical School Ship Sails On 17,000 Mile Voyage With 110 Boys

(International News Service)

SAUSALITO, Calif., Feb. 19.—Chanteys of the sea rolled from the lips of 110 embryonic sailors at the State Nautical School at Tiburon as they set out for their first annual seven months cruise on the high seas. On board the California State nautical school ship, they headed out through the Golden Gate on the last day of the old year for a 17,000 mile voyage "Around the Horn."

Although the ship, converted from a wartime shipping board vessel into a floating schoolroom, will be manned by the cadets, she will be in command of Captain Emile Topp, head of the school, and a professional crew of 26, who will also instruct the boys in the ways of the sea.

The cadets ranging in age from 17 to 21, come from 38 California counties, lured by the call of the sea to undertake the three year course offered by the school as training for the American Merchant Marine.

Two classes will be aboard, the first class which entered the school last March and the second which matriculated December 14.

It is the first venture of its kind in the history of the state, according to Captain Topp, retired naval officer and Annapolis graduate

The itinerary of the trip includes stops at Panama, Gallao and Valparaiso on the way down the west coast of South America then around the Horn, up the east coast stopping at Buenos Aires, Montevideo, romantic Rio de Janerio, Port of Spain, Colon, back through the Panama Canal to Mazatland, San Diego, Los Angeles, Santa Monterey, Eureka and back to San Francisco.

The boys will be divided into port and starboard watches, working four hours on and four off, according to Captain Topp. Off duty they will receive instructions in navigation, mathematics, seamanship, maritime law, physics, electricity, engineering and other kindred subjects, designed to make them efficient mariners.

The California Nautical School was founded in 1930, and this cruise was made possible when the federal government appropriated $210,000 for remodeling the ship, which had been tied up in James River, Va., after the war.

One of the Lake type vessels, the California State is about 250 feet long and 2500 gross tons. She is equipped with gyro and radio compasses, radio apparatus, boats for life saving drills as well as for emergency.

The nautical school course covers three years, divided into two periods, five months at the shore school at Tiburon and seven months at sea. Future cruises will take new paths over the seven seas, Captain Topp declared.

SNOWFALLS KILL MANY NAVAJO'S SHEEP

(International News Service)

BOULDER, Colo., Feb. 19.—Now is the time for all good Indian welfare societies to come to the aid of the Navajos, paraphrases Earl H. Morris, noted archeologist, who is doing work in the University of Colorado museum for the Carnegie Institution.

"Going into the winter practically broke because of the low prices they received for their lambs and wool clips, the Navajos," Morris said, "are losing most of their sheep because of the early and very heavy snows. The terrible snow in the latter part of November covered the high lands in the heart of the Navajo reservation with 18 inches to 5 feet of snow, making it impossible for the sheep to feed.

"Until the snow crusted it was impossible for the herds to be moved, which resulted in a terrible mortality. The Indians will get thorugh the winter, but they will face the coming years in a very bad condition. The normal revenues from their flocks will be cut off, the wool clip and lambs."

WRONGDOING WAS MATTER OF HISTORY

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 19.—History books led James McArdle, 18, to embark on a career of crime.

Captured after a chase through downtown streets in which shots were fired by pursuing officers, McArdle gave this explanation of his bad check activities from his cell in the city prison today.

"If they had only taken my history books from me I'd not be here today," he remarked ruefully.

"I love history and those heroes—Napoleon, the Caesars, Alexander the Great, the Crusaders—all great big guys, were the ones I liked best.

"I wanted to be like them.

"Then my people brought me out from Springfield, Mo., to Sacramento. That's when my bad luck started.

"My history books were back in Springfield and I wanted to get back to them.

"So I began to steal. I got caught. Then when they let me out of Preston, I still wanted to get back and so I began writing checks. That's the whole story."

"Winnie," Whale, Not Fish Court Rules

(International News Service)

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 19.—"Winnie" was the whale who swam up the Columbia River to the city limits and made friends with all the inhabitants here.

Then Edward and Joe Lessard came along. They killed "Winnie," speared him with a harpoon.

The Lessards were denounced by the populace and convicted of illegal "spearing of fish." But a higher court ruled a whale is not a fish and reversed the conviction.

And all that time "Winnie" hung by her tail in the court yard, pickled and varnished at state expense. She proved a glutton for pickling.

Finally the Lessards were told to take their whale. They planned an

ATTEMPT TO EXTRACT GOLD NEARLY FATAL

(International News Service)

DENVER, Col., Feb. 16.—An amateur's attempt to extract gold almost brought fatal results to a Denver man, his wife and three-year-old daughter.

A. E. McClimans wanted to prove to his daughter, Shirley, that some sand he had contained gold. He improvised a smelting process, mixing mercury with the sand and placit in an oven.

Mrs. McClimans found the mixture there and set it on a gas burner.

Lethal fumes from the boiling mercury penetrated the McClimans home. McClimans returned home from work to find his wife and daughter seriously ill. He, too, was soon stricken with a similar attack.

Physicians were summoned. They thought the family was suffering from influenza. Then they discovered the mercury and administered treatment for mercury poisoning. All will recover.

Tuscania Survivors Hold Anniversary

(International News Service)

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 16.—Survivors of the troopship Tuscania, torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine off the British Isles February 5, 1918, celebrated the twelfth anniversary of their escape when members of the Western division of the Tuscania Survivors Association met here.

The three British commanders whose ships rescued all but 266 of the 2240 men aboard the Tuscania on the eventful night of the disaster, will be invited here in September for the national convention of the American Legion. More than 240 men of the group were listed as living in Oregon.

PYTHONS IN DEMAND FOR MILADY'S SHOES

PRETORIA, South Africa, Feb. 19.—Pythons are decreasing because women must have snakeskin shoes.

The fashion, growing steadily in all parts of the world, has already irreparably damaged python life here. If the fashion continues, or unless some other skin is found, pythons are threatened with extinction.

At the present time several thousand python skins are exported annually. The trade, however, is only in its infancy, and it is anticipated that the time will come when the slaughter of pythons will be intensified to meet its demands.

Those who are pleading for the python declare that the man-in-the-street's knowledge of this reptile is often at fault. They admit that it has the power to crush a man in its coils in a few minutes, but, they declare, it is seldom troublesome unless molested.

The value of the output per year of the United States government printing office is approximately $10,000,000.

HOW WAR-TORN SHANGHAI IS BEING GUTTED BY FLAMES

International Telephoto

Crouched behind sandbag barricades in the streets of the international settlement in Shanghai, these Japanese machine gunners are guarding a marine inspection group from attack by Chinese snipers. In the background, near the Odeon theater, one can see one of the conflagrations in the Chapei district, the result of Japanese bombing planes. The Odeon later was set afire.

Some Russians Believe in God

Although the Soviet Government frowns upon religion and religious institutions, these White Russians in Manchuria continue the observance of their church festivals. This photo, made in Harbin, Manchuria, shows a party of Russians in a colorful parade, carrying religious emblems to commemorate the escape of a Russian colony from the slaughter of 1918, when the Reds ruthlessly stamped out their opponents. This ceremony is called the "Blessing of the Waters."

NO SPRINGTIME IN THE ROCKIES

It's not springtime in the Rockies yet, by any means. Residents near Ogden, Utah, claim there has been more snow in their region recently than in many a year. Several barns and homes were flattened out when roofs gave may under five feet of snow.

JAPANESE TROOPS SNAPPED IN ACTION IN SHANGHAI

International Telephotos

Two views in the Chapei district of Shanghai, China, taken as Japanese marines invaded the area in an attempt to capture North station, a strategic point just outside the international settlement. Above, Japanese marines are shown waiting the signal to leave their sandbag barricades for the attack. Note the poised bayonets and the machine gun sniper. Below Chinese prisoners are being marched behind Japanese lines, after being taken as suspected snipers.

Record Miler's Victory Smile

Flashing across the finish line to win the mile event, break his own record and set a new world mark, Gene Venzke, of Pottstown, Pa., is shown at left as he turned in the remarkable performance. Venzke ran the mile in 4:10 flat, eclipsing his previous record of 4:11 1-5 and coming within a second of beating the world's outdoor record. The occasion was the New York Athletic Club meet at Madison Square Garden, New York. Venzke will be one of the main U. S. hopes in the coming Olympics at Los Angeles.

Notables at Florida Tee-Party

Statesman's Lady at the Wheel

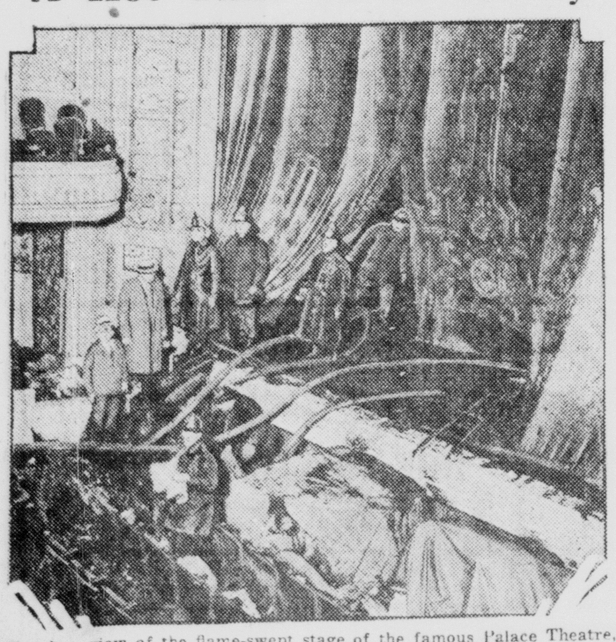

Like her energetic husband, Mrs. Patrick Hurley, wife of the Secretary of War, believes in doing things for herself instead of depending on others. Here is the charming matron as she was making a shopping tour in and about the National Capital acting as her own chauffeur. Mrs. Hurley is one of Washington's most popular hostesses.

HONOR WASHINGTON THE MASON

The national George Washington Masonic memorial at Alexandria, Va., honoring Washington, the Mason, is to be dedicated early in May as part of the nation-wide bicentennial. Insets show the Masonic apron Washington wore and the silver and ivory trowel he used when he laid the corner stone of the capitol in Washington, Sept. 18, 1793—139 years ago, when Washington was 61.

A Hot Time on Broadway

Here's a view of the flame-swept stage of the famous Palace Theatre, New York's leading vaudeville house, showing firemen running hose lines behind the ruined curtain during the fire which started with an electric flash in the orchestra pit and spread to the wings, during the appearance of Sophie Tucker, famous headliner, who tried to halt the ensuing stampede of the audience. No one was seriously hurt in the mad scramble for the exits, but a lot of clothing was lost and torn.

Snatched From a Frigid Death

Though not a golf bug, Joseph Taurson succeeded in making a hole in one when he went through the ice on the Charles River, at Boston, and was in danger of drowning but for the prompt action of Officer Thomas Dawley, who rescued him from the frigid death trap by means of a ladder. The actual rescue is shown. Lower photo shows Taurson with his savior, at a Boston police station, recovering from his immersion in the icy river.

Reformer Eyeing His Target

As if seeking some prediction of his fate in the face of the boy he shot while intoxicated, Daniel Gilday, reformer of Chicago, is shown in court as he went to trial for the shooting of 17-year-old Herman Knol (right of rear trio). Gilday, who waived a jury trial, is charged with the attack on the boy, who had tried to help him when he appeared to be too drunk to help himself. With Gilday are his attorney (left) and his wife.

STUDENTS FIGHT UNEMPLOYMENT

These three Wellesley college girls are busily knitting sweaters as part of the student drive against unemployment. The increased demand for knitting wool has resulted already in some girls receiving extra work in the mills. All the finished garments are turned over to the unemployed in nearby communities. Nancy Fitzwilliams, left, lives at Cambridge, Mass.; Arece Lambat comes from Philadelphia, and Jane Griswold's home is also in the Quaker City.

Woman Voted 'Most Useful' Feels 'Humble' With Award

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 19.—Very modesty does silver-haired Mrs. Frederick C. Thompson take the honor of designation as the city's "most useful citizen" for 1931.

"Nothing has ever made me feel so humble," she said after her fellow citizens had thus rewarded her 10 years of tireless work among the city's poor and needy persons. She is assistant superintendent of the Tacoma Community House.

The woman, whose days are a routine of boys' and girls' work, English lessons to women of foreign birth, religious, health, play and home economics, guidance, and whose nights are occasionally broken into with hurry-up calls for help in ushering new lives into the world, gives much of the credit to her husband.

"My work is the work I love," she explains. "And all I have really done is to assist Mr. Thompson, who is superintendent, in relieving and helping the people who come to us."

One week recently she sat at bedsides and watched six persons die. She has sat in an automobile with a tiny coffin in her lap, while bereaved parents, too poor to afford a funeral, were being driven to the cemetery.

For a brief hour at a civic dinner, attended by the most prominent citizens of Tacoma, she left her duties and the distinction was bestowed upon her. Her contributions to the community were called invaluable by E. B. King, chairman of the committee who chose her.

"And for this," he added, simply, "she receives the magnificent salary of $40 a month."

Must Have Hobby Asserts Professor

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 19.—A man, to be well educated, should have a hobby.

Professor W. Linwood Chase of Boston University's school of education said this in discussing, "What Is An Educated Man."

"A hobby gives a business man a well-rounded development," said Professor Chase. "An educated man never 'knows it all.' A hobby may even go as far as to change a man's profession.

"Narrow interests, noticeably poor manners, or outstanding lack of information in everyday subjects are some of the many attributes that label a man as 'not educated,'" continued Professor Chase.

"Any person who can hold his own in speech and actions with his peers, is a well educated man. It follows naturally that the man who qualifies for a place among the well educated must keep a scientific attitude, meaning simply that he must always be willing to learn."

Abnormalities Of Weather Make Forecast Easier

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 19.—When the weather gets off its "beaten path"—becomes either colder or warmer than normal—the abnormality is likely to continue for 60 days. And because of this fact, meteorological students may learn how to fortell the weather for weeks in advance.

These statements were made by Charles D. Reed, head of the government weather bureau here.

"A study of government records has disclosed," Reed said, "that marked weather abnormalities of mid-winter and mid-summer persist over periods of 60 days or more. The greater the abnormality, the more certain the sequence.

"A hot June will be followed by a hot, dry July nearly 100 per cent of the time in the Mississippi valley. This fact should prove to be important knowledge for corn and cotton growers.

"A cold January—one nine degrees or more colder than normal—will almost invariably be followed by an unusually cold February.

"A close study of these sequences may enable us to learn how to accurately predict general weather conditions for weeks in advance."

SCIENTISTS EMBARK ON BAHAMA EXPEDITION

(International News Service)

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 19.—Hunting useful plants that can be introduced to the United States, Dr. David Fairchild and three other scientists have embarked upon a three months' cruise to the Bahamas, Caribbean islands and the Guianas.

The trip is being made on the 230-foot yacht Utowana, which was built and fitted with the necessary equipment by A. V. Armour, of New York, who is accompanying the party. Others aboard include P. Howard Dorsett, just back from three years of exploring in China; Harold Loomis, tropical plant expert, and J. H. Toy, of the Florida state experimental station at Homestead.

Dr. Fairchild organized the seed and plant bureau of the Federal Government in 1897. Since that time he has brought more than 80,000 new species into this country.

The Utowana has made eight similar cruises to remote corners of the world, bringing back some 2,000 new plants. The yacht is expected to return to Florida next April.

Bees are remarkable weather prophets. At the approach of a storm they will drop their business of gathering honey and make a bee-line for home.

IS MELLON TO REMARRY?

Washington society circles are whispering that Andrew Mellon, the multi-millionaire ambassador to Great Britain, and his former wife, Nora Mellon, are to be remarried. This is a recent photo of Mrs. Mellon, who was divorced in Pittsburgh 20 years ago. Mrs. Mellon was the daughter of a brewer in Dublin, Ireland. For years she refused to live in America. Recently she has resided with her son on an estate Mellon bought near Middleburg, Va.

SAWMILL USED AS HAVEN FOR JOBLESS

(International News Service)

OLD LYME, Conn., Feb. 19.—The welcome sign is out for weary travelers in Old Lyme. A sawmill owned by George Griswold has been turned into a Wayfarer's Rest for jobless pedestrians who trudge through the town eve y day seeking work here and in nearby communities.

Plenty of wood, mattresses and food are kept on hand and a large "Welcome" sign hangs over the door. There are no hotel bills to pay.

Recently several Niantic fishermen returning from a trip in a heavy rainstorm stopped at the sawmill to dry their clothing and have some hot food. The following day a generous supply of canned goods and several loaves of bread were delivered at the old mill in return for the hospitality.

PRICE WAR MEETS CUSTOMERS' APPROVAL

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 19.—A price-slashing war in the lunch box business hit two sections of Cleveland to the extreme satisfaction of the purchasers.

Two rival merchants were involved in each of the battles. In one locality, laborers had their choice of three sandwiches, a slice of pie, two cookies and an apple for 10 cents or the same menu for 15 cenih with, sometimes, a ticket calling for a free lunch.

Free coffee with a fifteen-cent lunch and a coffeeless meal for a dime were the offerings on the other battlefront.

Modoc Lava Beds Reveal Relic Of Indian Campaign

Bullets And Brass Ornaments Are Picked Up On Grounds

(International News Service)

ALTURAS, Cal., Feb. 19.—Tramping across the Modoc Lava Beds a young Indian, Harrison Wilson, of the Pit River Indian tribe, picked up several bullets, a brass ornament from a United States soldier's cap and a knapsack buckle.

On the cap was the insignia of Troop G, First U. S. Cavalry. The buckle bore the date 1867. They were relics of one of the most hectic and violent Indian campaigns in the history of the American occupation of the West. The wearer of that cap and knapsack no doubt fell before the war party of Captain Jack, a young Modoc chief, whose raids in 1872 and 1873 stirred the entire nation.

Against their will the Modoc Indians, whose tribal home was on the shore of Tule Lake, had been moved to the Klamath Reservation early in 1872. A short time later, 150 braves under the leadership of Captain Jack, young Modoc chieftain, left the reservation and secreted themselves in the many caves in lava beds, from which they made sorties into the surrounding country, slaughtering the whites, burning homes and pillaging villages.

Time and again they repulsed troops sent against them, finally completely routing a large force in the historic battle of "Captain Jack's Stronghold," described by Colonel Wheaton in his report as "the strongest natural position he had ever seen."

As a result of the defeat Washington ordered a parley and a peace commission headed by Brig. Gen. Edward S. Canby, met Captain Jack under a flag of truce. Despite the flag under which they met, Captain Jack shot the general and escaped.

A chase which lasted months finally ended with his capture and he was hung Oct. 4, 1873. The remaining members of his band were removed to an Oklahoma reservation, ending the uprising.

YOUTH LEARNS BEST STATE SCIENTISTS

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 19.—The period of retentive memory (when the mind stores up recollections best) is, according to scientists, the halcyon days of youth.

But the Rev. Peter V. Tkachs, pastor of a Greek Catholic church here, proved that theory doesn't work always and his proving proved the undoing of Frank Walrych, 20.

Rev. Tkachs gave Walrych, a truck driver, a parcel containing Bibles, crucifixes and candlesticks to be delivered to a railroad station. They were allegedly never delivered. A month later Rev. Tkachs met Walrych on the street and had him arrested.

The church goods were found in his room, the police said, and the priest identified every one of them.

The union label originated in 1896 with the cigar makers of San Francisco in their conflict with Chinese labor.

No. 5—The Question Of A Career

AT 15 WASHINGTON'S SCHOOL DAYS WERE OVER AND THE QUESTION OF A CAREER AROSE. THE BOY WISHED TO GO TO SEA AND BECOME A NAVAL OFFICER. HE EVEN WENT SO FAR AS TO OBTAIN A MIDSHIPMAN'S APPOINTMENT IN THE ROYAL NAVY, BUT HIS MOTHER FLATLY REFUSED TO GIVE HER CONSENT.

IT IS EXTREMELY UNLIKELY, HOWEVER, THAT THE ASSOCIATIONS OF THE ENGLISH SERVICE WOULD HAVE SWERVED WASHINGTON FROM HIS PATRIOTIC DEVOTION TO AMERICA. THWARTED IN HIS AMBITION, HE DECIDED TO BECOME A SURVEYOR . . . . . .

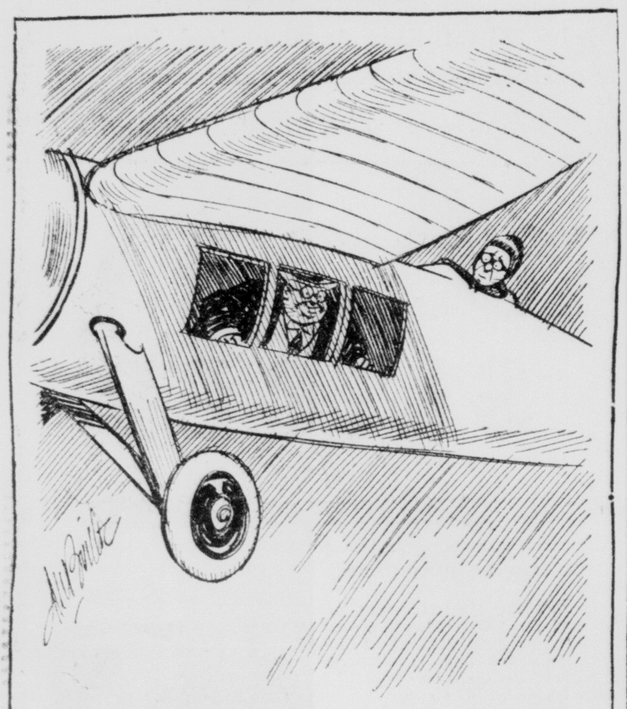

NOT LONG AFTERWARD HE WENT TO LIVE WITH LAWRENCE WASHINGTON AT MOUNT VERNON. BY THIS TIME GEORGE WAS AS TALL AS A FULL-GROWN MAN AND LOOKED MUCH OLDER THAN HE REALLY WAS.

GEORGE MADE A VERY FAVORABLE IMPRESSION ON LORD FAIRFAX, A RICH KINSMAN OF LAWRENCE'S WIFE, WHO PROMISED TO GIVE THE YOUTH A LOT OF WORK SURVEYING HIS VAST LANDS IN THE "NORTHERN NECK" OF VIRGINIA. ——•

Plan State Survey On Park Possibilities Of McConnells Mills

(Special To The News)

HARRISBURG Feb. 19—How best to bring the benefits of Pennsylvania's abundant natural beauty to the people of her great industrial centers, and to the notice of outsiders, will be determined by the Recreation Committee of the Greater Pennsylvania Council at its organization meeting in Harrisburg, February 26.

The scenery—and what goes with it—is a natural resource is an undisputed fact. It can be capitalized and made to earn large returns for the State and its citizens. The warm loveliness of Pennsylvania is a tremendous asset, but it must—to meet modern competition—be merchandised, as it were, by modern methods" said Director Charles Reitell.

W. H. Connell, of Philadelphia, Executive Director of the Regional Planning Federation of the Philadelphia Tri-State district, has accepted temporary chairmanship of the Recreation Committee, composed of a score or more of persons from all parts of the State.

Projects already determined for Committee consideration include:

1. A survey of the possibilities for public development of more large country parks in the Philadelphia district, for its present 3,500,000 population and the 6,500,000 expected by 1980.

2. A similar survey of the Pittsburgh area, particularly as to possible public development of McConnell's Mills famous beauty-spot near New Castle.

3. Plans for recreational area in the Erie-Pymatuning region, including the great new Pymatuning Lake with its 70 miles of shoreline, on the Western edge of the State.

4. A study of various Pennsylvania recreation resorts to determine by exact scientific methods just what attractions they have to offer the tired city folk of Pennsylvania and other states. Such studies will serve as models for others to be made later. Those already scheduled are for the Seven Mountain, Black Forest, Allegheny Tablelands and the Poconos of Northeastern Pennsylvania. The latter will be studied first.

"In these studies we shall be pioneering to form a possible basis for the merchandising of recreation based on exact scientific facts" said Dr. Reitell.

"For many years Pennsylvania vacation-spots have given enjoyment to vacationists, who have realized the value of their beauty and climate. Other advantages can now be scientifically measured. What are the therapeutic values? How constant is the sunshine? How clean and clear is the air? How pure are the waters?

"Modern science can now exactly answer these questions. The health-giving qualities of a region may be determined as closely as the strength of a steel bridge, or the qualities of a chemical.

"Such studies will enable us to find out how scientific data, translated in terms of public understanding, may be used later to merchandise other areas, or the recreational advantages of the whole State.

"The State Health Department will donate the service of a specialist who will supervise the Health studies described above, and will furnish use of its laboratories and records.

"The Pymatuning region will, upon completion of the dam and the creation of the great lake, inevitably attract industries and population. Removal of the fear of floods and draught in the Beaver and Shenango Valleys, by virtue of the steadier water-supply made possible by the dam and lake, will increase the attractiveness of these Valleys to industry.

"Studies on the industrial possibilities of the region are planned by the Council. The recreational studies will keep pace with those, so that, we hope, the industrial value and the recreational value of the region will advance hand in hand."

Members of the Recreational committee, beside Connell are:

Mrs. Ella B. Black, Beaverdale, Cambria County; Miss Helen Blair, Wellsboro, Tioga County; E. E. Bown, Bradford, McKean County; Ellwood B. Chapman, Swarthmore, Delaware County; Dr. Anna C. Clarke, Scranton; Mrs. Lora H. Cook, Cooksburg, Forest County; J. Q. Creveling, Wilkes-Barre, Luzerne County, Mrs. Anna Elliott, Ardmore, Montgomery County; Nelson Frantz, Stroudsburg, Monroe County; Mrs. Mary Norris Hamilton, Ardmore, Montgomery County; Otto G. Hitchcock, Erie, Erie County; Miles Horst, Schaefferstown, Lebanon County; Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, Sharpsburg, Allegheny County; J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg; P. M. Newman, Williamsport, Lycoming County; H. G. Peterson, Mansfield, Tioga County; W. Lawrence Saunders, 2nd, Bryn Mawr, Montgomery County; Jere West, Bedford, Bedford County; Samuel P. My New York by JAMES ASWELL

By Central Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Next to being "discovered," perhaps the keenest wallop any typewriter musician can have in this loony town is that of "discovering" somebody else. After all, Manhattan is a large stack of shacks and sometimes the grain of talent—the spark—gets lost in the fanfare for mediocrities.

I had the inspiration the other night to send two friends of mine, men who have, it happens, the vast press-power of spotlighting, to see Jack White cavort on the floor of the Ballyhoo restaurant. Jack, as you may be aware, is my favorite night-club funnyman at the moment. Those moguls of the press, whose favor cannot be bought but may be only earned, thought this White guy was a wow. They had a swell time.

More importantly, Jack was approached soon after, as a result, by radio folk who heard that he was a potential Big Name and didn't want to miss lining him up early. I hope he clicks with progressively louder noises, as he deserves.

* * *

"AND NEXT, FOLKS—"

And while our placer-pans are rattling we can reach down for a new and shiny nugget. I mean one Senor Arroyito, an astonishing, diminutive gentleman, usually to be encouraged in El Chico's, the only dine-and-dance place in the Spanish manner which travelers recognize. They tell me the proprietor is a former Cook's Tour guide.

This Arroyito is known as "the Covarrubias of Cuba," whence I gather he fled due to political misunderstandings. I sympathize with the big-wigs he must have skewered in caricature with his cruel crayon. He arrived, vague about his future but full of pep, at the portals of El Chico in Grove street, and the boss told him to sit around in corners and caricature the patrons.

He did. The violent and pitilessly apt likeness he caught from ambush of this reporter needs an asbestos frame. The boy is good. But portraits in parody are only half his talent. Before I could pick my malefactor from the assembled cabelleros and castaneted senoritas a startling jumping-jack in blackface exploded upon the floor.

"That," said a gentleman at the next table, "is Arroyito."

The only way I can describe his performance is to ask you to imagine an Al Jolson 20 pounds lighter doing the rhumba. He was a mosquito on strings. His febrile gyrations, his inspired gracelessness, reduced to quick and final absurdity the whole importation of tango-tom-tom dancing to this country. His mad movements burlesqued the motiff of gravely glamorous Chico's, in the same manner that his drawings caught the gravely gravid outlines of patrons' noses.

What smart big time revue producer will first get wise to Arroyito?

DISSENTERS' VOTE

I'm getting too good-hearted. Let's complain a little and feel balanced. There are those red fingernails—even, praise be to Paris, green ones now. I hate 'em. There's the customs of waiters in night clubs setting up tables in front of ringside tables until the spot you paid a whacking tip to achieve is six rows back before the show has begun.

And there's the columning necessity of avoiding the places really liked in the effort to find new and ever new material. There's the chain of imitations of Lyda Roberti, when even the original never sent me into hysterics. There's the chain of imitations of Kate Smith, ditto. There's the chain of imitations of everybody who ever got a hand.

There's the heavy and childish propaganda crammed into all Russian movies. There's the custom of tipping taxi drivers, sponsored by New Yorkers and courageously avoided by out-of-towners. There's the misery of attending functions which require boiled shirts. There's the misery of listening to political speeches over friends' radios.

Now. Take a deep breath. Feel better?

What Would Have Happened If Lincoln Hadn't Been Shot?

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service
Dramatic Editor

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Enter the "if" family into the field of the drama.

In "If Booth Had Missed," Arthur Goodman, the playwright suggests what would have happened if the assassin of Abraham Lincoln had shot wide of the mark when he entered the president's box at Ford's Theatre.

It is a fertle field opened up to the imagitatve talents of other playsmiths. Of course, it springs from the childhood game of "Just supposin'," but children always did have more creative originality than their grownups.

Just suppose—

If Christopher Columbus had come upon Argentina instead of the West Indies?

If George Washington had fought for the British instead of the American colonists?

If Benjamin Franklin hated to fly a kite?

If Thomas Edison had taken up law?

If the Wright brothers avoided high places?

If the Kaiser liked to play with dolls?

If Babe Ruth were anemic?

If Marlene Dietrich were bowlegged?

What—oh, what—would have happened?

According to the answer dramatized in "If Booth Had Missed" nothing much different would have happened. Somebody else would have probably spotted the Indies, fought for the colonists, discovered electricity, invented the arc light, the phonograph, the movies, flown the first plane, started the World War, knocked home runs and exhibited a pair of delectable legs.

* * *

Specifically, if the bullet labeled for Lincoln had gone astray, the president would have been shot some months later by somebody else says the playwright.

It an interesting stage revision of history, Lincoln's life is saved by the timely action of a negro porter. Lincoln fights almost a lone battle against the forces of Congress who would punish the South.

Lincoln is impeached. General U. S. Grant arrests him. And after a rhetorical and sentimental address before the Senate, Lincoln is acquitted of the charge of treason. Thereupon one of the politicians enemies upjumps and shoots him dead.

The last scene is that of a Lincoln statue. A chorus of off-stage voices sing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

* * *

It struck me that as long as a chap is going to re-write history it would be more fun to make it end differently. If you are going to come back to the same point there's no sense in running a circle when a triangle will do.

Why didn't Lincoln shoot Grant? Or Grant shoot Secretary of War Stanton? Or a couple of senators?

After all, a chap is only fooling with history.

Sentiment Better Declares Schwab

Steel Magnate Celebrates His 70th Birthday At New York Office

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—"This is the happiest day of my life."

Charles Schwab, man of steel, tempered by the twilight of advancing years, smiled gently as he sat behind his flower banked desk in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation office Thursday greeting those who came to congratulate him on his seventieth birthday.

He talked of the past with obvious pleasure; of the present with series mien; and of the future with confidence.

"Last year was the worst year I have ever seen," he said turning to Eugene Grace, present president of Bethlehem Steel, for confirmation. "You ask me about 1932. I will say that sentiment is better. People are more hopeful and their state of mind is better. But as yet this sentiment has not been reflected in business."

WIDOW MAKES BRAVE FIGHT

Courageous German Woman Finally Wins Long Struggle Against Sickness

"When my husband died," says Mrs. G. T. Hauck of Huntington, W. Va., "I was left with six children all under ten years of age. His long sickness used up most of our savings and after the funeral expenses were paid I had only enough money left to buy food for a week or so. I did not owe anything on the furniture but house was only about half paid for. I had only been in this country about two years and I still had pretty good health. I hunted up a few of the men at the mill who had been friends of my husband and they agreed to come and board with me. Everybody said I was a fine cook. Soon more men wanted to come than I could handle. They paid me good money, too. I thought I had nothing to worry about and thanked God I had the health and strength to cook for twenty men and take care of my children, too.

"But presently my health began to give way. First my feet were always cold. Then I had dizzy spells with bad headaches and pressure on the top of my head. Stomach trouble came on me. Sour, burning gases formed after eating. Ofter I became nauseated. I had to take physics every night to get my bowels to move. My color got bad, dark circles formed under my eyes, and there were lines in my face like an old woman, although I was only 28 years old. I grew thinner and weaker all the time. It was all I could do to keep on with my work. Occasionally I would be so weak and tired that I would fall down in a dead faint on the floor of the kitchen.

"The men began to grumble about the meals and some of them left me. However, one of them who was married Karl knew about World's Tonic and one day he brought me a bottle from the drug store. He told me how this wonderful new scientific preparation was made of roots and herbs gathered in different parts of the world and therefore could help a German woman, or any other European, as well as Americans, in a way not to be expected of ordinary American medicines.

"The first dose of World's Tonic proved to me that their principle is right. I was better immediately. And, after taking three bottles I had my old health back again. I gained 30 pounds and was rosy and well like I used to be back in Germany. Three months later Karl and I were married. I do not have to take boarders any more, but am so strong I easily could. Karl and I are very happy and we both feel we owe it all to World's Tonic."

World's Tonic is on sale at Eckerd's, McKee's, Paisley's, Smith's and all other modern drug stores. (B-49)

Some Auto Repair Shops Attempt To Mislead Motorists

HARRISBURG, Feb. 19—The Department of Revenue today warned Pennsylvania motorists against repair shops that are indirectly posing as official motor vehicle inspection stations. These shops are within the law but by carefully worded display signs seek to convey the impression that they are official stations, authorized by the Commonwealth to inspect cars and to issue approval stickers.

Car owners patronizing garages and repair shops of this type are only assuming the additional trouble of having their car inspected again, Benjamin G. Eynon, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, explained. Such shops cannot issue approval stickers and this means that motor vehicle owners eventually will have to go to an official station if they wish to continue to operate, he said.

While no official outdoor display sign has been adopted by the Commonwealth for use of official stations, most of them usually have a sign reading. "Official Inspection Station." Use of such sign by a garage or repair shop not officially appointed is a violation of the law. Each official station also has its certificate of appointment on display.

Sunny Skies Awaken Thoughts Of Gentle Spring To Farmers In County's Rural Districts

If the city dweller is taking in the unseasonable weather thoughtlessly, it's the farmer of Lawrence county who really appreciates the absence of winter's ice and cold.

Right now many county farmers are plowing. In fact, according to County Farm Agent H. R. McCulloch, there has been more plowing this winter than in many years past, due to the favorable weather that aids in the preparation for growing spring crops.

The fruit growers, the dairymen, the sheep raisers—all are appreciative of the present state of the weather, and many of them are already planning for the spring. Among the farmers who raise a variety of crops in the county, discussions have been going forward during the past few weeks under the auspices of the Lawrence County Agricultural Extension society. Lime and legume plant, and poultry meetings have been held by the society. E. J. Walter and H. H. Kauffman, State College agricultural experts, have presented a series of talks to farmers.

As for the county's dairymen, their job is good for 365 days of the year, and of course, during the present good weather, have taken extra advantage to improve the conditions of their herds.

Sheep men, of whom there are many in the county, are finding new lambs born by their flocks and are making improvements on the farms that they ordinarily do in later weeks.

Due to the activity of the countys' home economics worker, Miss Eleanor Drury, women of the rural communities are enjoying the completion of many home-making projects that will pave the way for a more enjoyable summer.

Adds New Section To Health Rules, Will Guard Pools

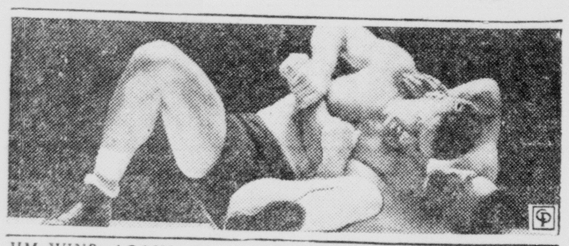

HARRISBURG, Feb. 19.— The rules and regulations promulgated by the Advisory Health Board of Pennsylvania, for the prevention of disease, and for the protection of the lives and health of the people of the Commonwealth, received an added paragraph today, to cover regulation of bathing places, swimming pools and natatoriums.

This Act, known as the "Public Bathing Law," became effective in the State last September, and active preparations for its enforcement have been carried forward by the Health Department, bureau of engineering, since that date. Every owner of a bathing place must be licensed by the State before he can legally operate it as a public institution.

St. Marys Tops Youngstown 36-31

Two Extra Periods Required To Settle Battle At St. Marys Floor

KULICH-UHLE STARS OF GAME

St. Mary's big five went ahead of Youngstown "Y" team last night in their five-game series when the Saints took a 36 to 31 victory in a game that required two exra periods to determine the winner. The game was the best that has been played at the St. Mary's floor this year and drew a fine crowd. The series now stands two for the locals and one for Youngstown.

The lead seesawed back and forth several times during the game with the Saints ahead at the first quarter 6 to 5. At the end of the half the Youngstown team held the lead at 15 to 14. The end of the third quarter was 25-25 with both teams battling on even terms. Kulich, Uhle and Lackey were throwing them in for the Saints with regularity. Johnson and McDonald were the big aces in the Youngstown camp.

Saints Take Lead

The fourth and final quarter was a tough tussle all the way, with the score deadlocked at 27-27 when the regulation game ended. The Saints were maintaining their fast pace by caging a lot of foul tries. The Saints total fouls for the evening were sixteen out of seventeen which is a good record in anybody's game. The Saint's continued to cage fouls in the first extra-period and were ahead 30 to 28 with a half second left to play when Johnson of Youngstown heaved one over his head and it dropped in for a field goal. The score was tied up at 30-30. Another extra-period was indulged in and the Youngstown boys became just a little rough which gave the Saints a lot more fouls to shoot and Rowe made two charity throws and Lackey dropped in two free heaves while a field goal on top of this gave the Saints six points. The best the visitors could do was a foul point. The game ended 36 to 31.

Next Game At Youngstown

The all-around playing of Uhle, Kulich and Lackey was a big feature of the game. Jones also played a fine defensive game for the Saints.

The next game in the series will be played at Youngstown next Wednesday night and if the Youngstown boys win, the fifth and deciding game will be played at the St. Mary's floor.

The summary:

St. Marys 36		Youngstown "Y" 31
Rowe	F	Johnson
Kulich	F	Welsh
Lackey	C	Boye
Jones	G	Griffin
Uhle	G	McDonald

Subs—Gennock, Grinnen. Field goals—Gennock 2, Kulich 3, Lackey 2, Jones 2, Uhle, Johnson 4, Welsh 2, Boye 2, Griffin 2, McDonald 3. Fouls—St. Marys 16 out of 17; Youngstown 5 out of 12.

Many Notables Ate At Hazen's

Apple Alley And Restaurant Once Prominent For Ring Stars

CHAMPIONS HAVE APPEARED HERE

Every city has its particular 'hang-out' for a certain class, be he a ball player, mat artist, grid star, fighter, cue shark, bowler, harness race patron or an enthusiast of archery. This always has been and always will be and it isn't infrequent to hear globe-trotter discuss places Here and There as being famous for notables who have partaken of food therein.

In the opinion of one who has known many members of the Fistic brigade and something of their ways it would be difficult for one to find a place more prominent for notable ring stars who partook of food therein than at Dal Hazen's restaurant which operated years ago in Apple way when the way was known as an alley.

In fact, Dal's place was known favorably Here and There for substantial food which went far, so the fighters agreed, to build bodies that could withstand gruelling punishment. It was not necessary for a member of the fistic fraternity to put his watch in "soak" or pen a promissory note in order to obtain a meal ducat.

No siree; the main recommendations for credit were either a managerial Okay, a black eye or a "tin ear." Either was considered collateral for a proper payment until the fighter had fought and earned a stake. There were, however, some, but few who failed to meet Dal at the cash register at the appointed hour.

Many Celebrities

Dal served everything that any restaurant serves—chicken, beans, pie, roast beef, tea, spuds; everything that money could buy. The beans however were extraordinaryily good and as numerous on a plate as they were on plates in the olden days when Boston was called Beantown.

No prominent fighter came to the city without either strolling through the famous Apple alley or eating at Dal's. There were quite a few celebrities who have fought or visited here. Frinstance among those who appeared here were the late John L. Sullivan, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jack McAuliff, Billy Papke and Johnny Kilbane.

Others who have heard the plaudits of the crowd after having indulged in an exhibition or bout here have been; George Dixon, Joe Walcott, George Gunther, Young Mahoney, Jack Blackburn, Martin Flaherty. So far as is known Jim Corbett never was here and Jack Dempsey's closest trip was 20 miles distance from Apple alley.

Later the restaurant became the hangout for George Chip, Johnny Kilbane, Tony Ross, Dan Dailey, Tom McMahon, Joe Chip, Tommy Bresnahan, Terry Mitchell, Bat Terry, Patsy Brannigan and others. Tommy Jones seldom partook of meals there because he was reared here and didn't have to eat out.

How They Fared

And now something about those characters:

No one will forget John L., his rise and fall. He lost his title as heavyweight to Jim Corbett.

Bob Fitzsimmons took the crown from Corbett and lost it to Jim Jeffries. He boxed an exhibition with Tony Ross.

Jack McAuliffe retired undefeated as lightweight champion.

Martin Flaherty lost to Dal Hawkins.

Harry Greb fought George Chip in the Coliseum here.

Johnny Kilbane dethroned Abe Attel and lost to Eugene Criqui.

George Gunther and Young Mahoney fought 20 rounds here.

Jack Blackburn was one of the best. He boxed Gunther.

Jimmy Dime came here 30 years ago. He was one of America's best 128 pounders. He had 41 knockouts in 44 fights.

Jimmy Dunn fought such notables as Abe Attel, Harlem Tommy Murphy and Freddy Welsh.

George Chip dethroned Frank Klaus middleweight champion.

Heavyweights Battles

Tony Ross fought all of the boys in the days when promoters sought someone to dethrone Jack Johnson.

Dan Dailey milled with such battlers as Jim Coffey and lost to Jess Willard.

Tom McMahon fought Gunboat Smith, Bill Brennan and won a popular decision from Jess Willard.

Joe Chip fought Johnny Wilson, when Wilson was middleweight king.

Tommy Jones put up some great fights with K. O. Sweeney, Young Fisher and met Jimmy Duffy at Akron.

NEW CASTLE-ROCHESTER FIVES BATTLE TONIGHT

Red And Black Quintet Hopes To Annex Eleventh Floor Victory

RESERVES TO PLAY IN PRELIMINARY

Tin City Five Leaves Late This Afternoon For Rochester Contest

Confident that they will return home late this evening with the eleventh triumph of the floor season the New Castle high school quintet leaves late this afternoon for Rochester, where the Tin City ramblers strut their stuff against Rochester high in a regular Section Three game. At 7:15 o'clock the New Castle Reserves oppose the Rochester Reserves in the preliminary. The feature game follows immediately.

Already this season the New Castle passers have dropped the Rochesterians. The valley boys put up a bitter struggle but late in the contest were outclassed by a typical New Castle rally. Throughout the first half the Rochester cagers kept up with the local five. At half time the Red and Black clad boys were on top by a 13-11 score. The second half was just as interesting, in fact, more entertaining than the first half.. Another game like that played here would please the audience.

The local representatives may find the going even tougher tonight. The Rochester floor is a hard floor to play upon and usually troubles the visiting team. From a New Castle angle the tilt is important. The Lawrence countians are battling for the league honors and need this triumph to keep intact.

Should New Castle win, then it will have to defeat Butler next Friday night to cop the Section Three honor. Butler is scheduled to meet New Brighton tonight. Butler is favored to win. This means that it looks like the titular contest takes place here next Friday night. Start saving your shekals for this game.

It is predicted that many fans will journey to Rochester tonight.

Four Fights In New York Ring

Any One Of Four Ten-Round Bouts Tonight Could Be Featured

TITLE SEEKERS ARE MATCHED

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The boxing cards at Madison Square Garden tonight is the most unusual billed here in many years, because of these five angles:

1. None of the four ten-round matches has been billed as the top bout, although the boxing commission may designate a star bout late today.

2. Betting on all four bouts is at even money.

3. Two of the bouts will have an important bearing on world's titles that are now vacant.

4. Three of the featured boxers were knocked out in their last start, but were brought right back because win or lose, they always give the customers a thrill. This trio consists of Eddie Ran, Polish welterweight; Billy Townsend, Vancouver, B. C.; and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, Memphis welterweight.

5. Both Ran and Townsend, who are paired tonight, were knocked out by the same man, Billy Petrolle, in their most recent appearance here.

Many Good Bouts.

The bout between Chick Devlin, Vancouver, and Young Terry, Trenton, N. J., buzz-saw, is a semi-final championship match. The winner will be sent against Gorilla Jones, Memphis Negro, in a bout that will determine world supremacy in the middleweight division.

The winner of tonight's bout between Kid Francis of Italy, and Lew Feldman, Brooklyn, will be matched with Kid Chocolate, flashy Cuban, in the semi-final of the featherweight elimination tournament. The survivor is scheduled to box Earl Maestro, of Chicago, here in March to determine the next wearer of Bat Battalino's vacated championship in the 126-lb. class.

In the fourth bout on the card, Wolfe, the Memphis youngster, is pitted against Baby Joe Gans, Los Angeles colored boxer who is the veteran of 130 fights.

A wet State is one that yells for State rights and kicks because thinly-populated dry States have two Senators.

Union-Shenango Ready For Game

Union High Will Try Hard To Make It Two Straight Over Shenango Tonight

Union high school floor team will try hard tonight to make it two straight over Shenango high, when the rival schools get together for a County League battle in the Union high gym. The girls of the two schools will play the preliminary game starting at 7:30 o'clock.

Indications point to a packed gym at Union high this evening. The two teams are bitter rivals and Union won the game played earlier at the Shenango high floor. Since the Shenango game Union has had a tough row to hoe minues the services of big Joe Augustyn and therefore Shenango is just liable to sneak in with a victory as not. Shenango is plenty good.

Regular Lineup.

Coach Boyd said today that he would likely start his regular lineup tonight with Morrison and Phillips at the forwards, Lannigan at center and Sniezek and Jaworski at the guards. This same lineup handed Mars high a drubbing the other evening and Boyd is banking on them to turn the trick against Shenango.

Union's lot in the County League has been tough this season. A victory tonight will put the Union team in good graces. New Wilmington leads the league with East Brook, Union and Bessemer tied for second place.

Dave Hoskins, the popular W. P. I. A. L. official will handle the whistle tonight assuring the fans of a fast game.

East Brook And Bessemer Clash

Dempsey Holds Levinsky Even

Kingfish Levinsky Puts Up Great Battle Against Dempsey In Chicago

BATTLE DRAWS ENORMOUS CROWD

By LUTHER A. HUSTON
International News Service Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Feb. 19—Jack Dempsey is still pressing on today along the comeback trail heedless of a rough spot in the road which he encountered in the person of Kingfish Levinsky at the Chicago stadium last night.

Dempsey and a host of his friends who saw his tussle with the erstwhile fish peddler still believe that he can beat down the opposition that stands between him and the heavyweight championship he once held and earn another crack at the title.

Drew Big Crowd

No one of the 23,322 fight fans who saw Jack and the Kingfish step four rounds denies that Levinsky handled the Manassa mauler a bit roughly at times. The bout was purely an exhibition affair, without a decision but the majority of sports writers gave the verdict to the king.

It was the biggest crowd that ever saw an indoor boxing match and it paid a gross gate of $74,199.25 to view the spectacle.

Respects Dempsey

The pride of Chicago's Maxwell street had everything to gain and nothing to lose Yet he showed his respect for Dempsey's prowess when he came out very cautiously in the first round and did considerable clinching while Dempsey scored effectively at close quarters.

"Levinsky is a tough fighter," Dempsey said after the bout. "He is strong and he hits hard. He throws a lot of punches and anybody he fights will stop some of them."

Georgie Nichols Surprises Fans

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Feb. 19. — Georgie Nichols, Buffalo southpaw, took a rest today before beginning training for the final bout for the N. B. A. light heavyweight championship.

The Buffalo lad's victory over Billy Jones, Philadelphia Negro, in a preliminary to the Levinsky-Dempsey fight here last night, was a complete reversal of the form chart.

Jones had been the outstanding favorite to win the light heavyweight title since the tourney began. Nichols overwhelmed Jones in the early rounds, flooring him twice in the second and again in the fourth.

Nichols will probably meet Dave Maier, Milwaukee in the title fight.

The blue and white machine has come up in leaps and bounds and is considered as a dangerous threat in any game. They are primed for this contest and are expecting one of the hardest games of the year. Coach Todd Lloyd reports that the team is in fine physical shape and will be able to give a good account of itself in tonight's battle..

The team has rested up on Saturday and Monday but resumed its workouts Tuesday in preparation for this game. Yesterday's training period concluded with an interesting scrimmage session in which some of the Beaver Falls plays were explained.

The valley team is deeply set on avenging its earlier defeat at Ellwood City and has overlooked nothing in realizing its ambition. They are determined to show their followers that they are a better team than the Ellwood boys.

Secret Service Agent Arrests Ellwood Negro

Charge He Forged Name And Received Adjusted Compensation From Government

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Feb. 19.—William Hicks, colored, of 1000 Second street this city, is in custody of government officials at Pittsburgh on charges preferred by the U. S. government. Arrest of Hicks was made here by F. W. Fruber, secret service man working in conjunction with S. R. Douds of this city.

Hicks it is alleged stole some compensation papers from the trunk of "Anton Crutchfield" formerly of Ellwood City, and cashed them after forging the name of Crutchfield to the checks. The checks it seems were cashed by Ellwood City merchants and the First National Bank, on adjusted compensation for $109. Crutchfield was serving a sentence in Columbus for embezzlement when his trunk was ransacked.

The checks were traced to Hicks, and everything points to the local colored man as the forger. It was determined that the money had been paid out in Ellwood.

Hicks at first maintained that he was Crutchfield, but after several hours of grilling confessed to the crime, officers say. He was taken to Pittsburgh, to await action of the Federal Court. S. R. Douds of this city, brother of Squire Douds aided in the arrest.

WILL WED THE GIRL HE TRIED TO MURDER

(International News Service)

DORTMUND, Germany, Feb. 19.—A European tragedy, much like Theodore Dreiser's "American Tragedy" will be crowned by a happy end when Hildegrad Schwiersch 23, marries her would-be-slayer Albert Michalski, 26 year old miner in the prison of Dortmund, Westphalia.

Michalski told the police he entered into a suicide pact with the girl because her parents refused to consent to their marriage. He threw her into the Weser-Ems canal and then when she struggled hurled a brick at her. But his nerve failed, he said, when he wanted to jump in to drown himself.

Two sailors rescued the girl whose favorable testimony in court got Michalski off with a six months sentence on a charge of assault with intention to kill. They will be married despite parental objection.

New Jersey Cop Tips Beam At 407 In Regalia

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Until two weeks ago, Sergeant Pat Kelley of Summit, N. J., was just a big policeman—quiet and huge, 6 feet 5 inches, 384 pounds.

Every Christmas he played Santa Claus at the Summit Home for Children; every summer he won the cup for the largest man in the state Elk's convention parade. At home he wiped the dishes for his wife, "Peaches," 5 feet 4 inches, 98 pounds

But now—all on account of the power of the press—he is "the biggest cop in the country." He says so himself.

It started when Patrolman Harold Freeman, of Greenport, Long Island weighed in at 333 pounds and started bragging.

Then H. C. Morris who drives a black maria at Huntington, W. Va., put in a bid. But he weighs only a paltry 314.

Summit citizens promoted Sergeant Kelley and his 384 pounds.

Right away somebody urged 'Tiny' Gardner of the Dallas police cohorts, to get on the scales. He registered 388, and Dallas said he was biggest.

Pat Kelley looked at the newspaper picture of him, noting great-coat, puttees, gun, handcuffs, and all.

"Oh, well!" said Pat.

He donned regalia and went back to the scales. They groaned—407 pounds!

So Pat issued a statement today. "Hard work and clean living," he said, patting his big chest.

Enter Spencer In New York Meet

Geneva To Be Represented In A. A. U. Senior Competition

BEAVER FALLS, Feb. 19—Geneva College will be represented by Howard Spencer of Pittsburgh in the A. A. U. Senior Indoor Track and Field Championships at New York, Monday evening February 22. Spencer, a former Fifth Avenue sensation, will be entered in the high jump.

Spencer is easily the class of district leapers. He climaxed a fine scholastic career by placing second to the bronzed Walter Marty of the Olympic Club in the high jump event of the A. A. U. Junior championships held in Pittsburgh two years ago. Since entering Geneva he has never been beaten in district competition one of his accomplishments being his 6 feet 5 3-8 inch jump at the 1931 West Virginia Indoor Games. He holds verdicts over George Spitz, Bill O'Connor and Harold Osborne and has lost only to Marty and the competent Anton Burg. Two weeks ago he retained his title at the West Virginia Indoor Carnival by defeating a strong field with a 6 feet 3 inch effort.

SPYING ON SPORTS

BY WILLIAM RITT

Central Press Sports Editor

Opinions of coaches regarding the six changes made in the football rules, as an effort to check the "tendency toward increasing injuries," are as widely diversified as are football scores on any autumnal Saturday afternoon.

Which was to be expected.

Each coach viewed the situation from his own angle born of his own observations in the play of his own team and its opponents. He may be right in his opinion of what is needed to safeguard the player. But so may other coaches whose viewpoints differ.

As for the spectator, he should be satisfied. Unquestionably, the new rules will help in protecting the player and yet they do not measurably cost the game any of its value as a spectacle.

* * *

Some writers label the changes as "drastic," which they are, in a sense. But the rules committee might have made far more drastic changes had they wished to.

In the hysterical outburst which followed the tragic wave of football fatalities last season, there were some who cried for the abolition of the kickoff, the adoption of "touch" football and other revolutionary changes which would have put an end to the game as we now know it.

The rules committee, therefore, should be congratulated for the restraint shown in changing football law so that danger of injury probably will be largely lessened, yet not at the expense of the game itself.

* * *

Spectators should applaud in particular the new substitution rule.

Heretofore, when a star player was removed because of minor injury or exhaustion in the third period of a close game he was out of the game for good, no matter if, within a few minutes, he was perfectly capable of returning to the fray and giving his side full benefit of his ability.

The old rule often caused an injured or exhausted player to hide his condition, at risk to himself, so as to prevent his exclusion from further play. The new rule, which permits his return to the game in any subsequent period to the one in which he left the contest automatically does away with this evil.

The firiest old grad who never misses a game ought to applaud that.

* * *

There is some protest against the new rule which forces the receiving side to have five men on the 45-yard line and permits the kickoff to be made by a place kick, a drop kick or a punt.

Of course this rule gives an advantage to the kicking side, especially if it has a crack punter, but the advantage appears no greater than that which was enjoyed under the old rule by the receiving side and its flying wedge dealing injury—and sometimes worse—as it rushed the ball back.

The other four rules—restricting use of hands by defensive players, the ball becoming "dead" when the runner, for any reason, touches the ground with any part of his body other than hands or feet, the abolition of the flying block or tackle and the padding of hard-surfaced playing armor—have few critics.

The Texan who said congress was bone dry must have been reading the Congressional Record. — The Omaha Evening World-Herald.

WASHINGTON, THE HERO, REVEALED AS HUMAN BEING

George Washington, according to Rupert Hughes, the novelist, may have been the hero that he has been painted in thousands of American history books, but he also was a human being. Among other things, Hughes maintains that Washington never did cut down that cherry tree, that he played cards a great deal and gambled considerably, that he once danced three hours at a stretch with the pretty wife of an American general, and that he was something of a dude, being most fastidious concerning his clothes. The portrait and sketches are by Artist Alfred J. Buescher.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Violent Buying Wave Sends Stock Prices Up

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Bears in the stock market have now been driven to the last extremity by the stock exchange's latest ruling, which forbids members of the exchange to lend stocks except with the specific written permission of the owners.

Recognition of this fact was responsible for the violent buying wave which swept over the big board this morning, forcing prices of many of the leaders 1 to 7 points up and carrying the general average to the highest level of the year.

United States Steel common rushed up 3 points to 52½. This was the highest prices since last December.

The preferred stock jumped 5 points to 112¼.

Other spectacular ground gainers in the early outburst of buying included Eastman Kodak, up 7 points at 84¾; Auburn Auto up 6 at 128; Union Pacific railroad up 4½ at 93; American Tel. and Tel. up 3¼ at 136¾; American Can up 3¾ at 73; J. I. Case up about 3 points at 41⅛; Westinghouse up 3; Allied Chemical up 4.

The upward movements in the activities have ranged from 5 to 25 points since last Thursday and profit taking was naturally attracted to these stocks today. The spectacular advance has brought to a close in the second hour by selling from this source and in most cases the early peaks were flattened out a point or two. United States Steel dropped back from its early higher of 52½ to 51 and American Telephone reacted to 135.

Cotton, wheat and corn reached the best price levels of the current move and United States Treasury bonds continued their spectacular rise to the highest prices of the year. Call money was unchanged at 2½ per cent.

POSTOFFICE IN FAMILY

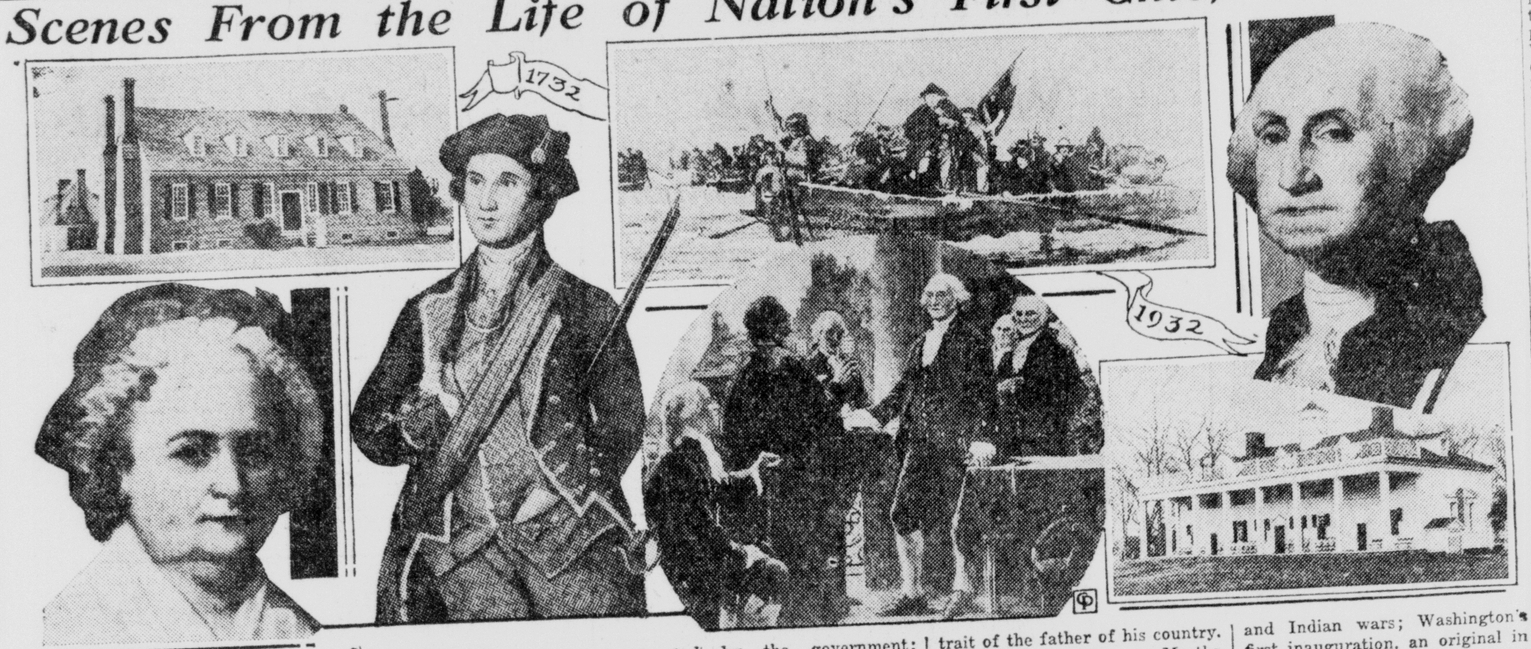

(International News Service)

WEST CAMPTON, N. H.—The postmastership here has been a "father and son affair" for twenty three years. W. B. Avery, general store keeper, served until 1926. Then he resigned in favor of his son, Ralph, who had been appointed assistant postmaster in 1920. When the elder Avery resigned was promptly appointed assistant to his son. The Averys still operate the general store and postoffice.

Scenes From the Life of Nation's First Chief Executive

These are scenes, photos and well known paintings, from the life of George Washington, first president of the United States of America, whose 200th birthday anniversary is being celebrated throughout the length and breadth of the land. Top views show, left to right, the birthplace of Washington at Wakefield, Va., reconstructed by the government; Washington crossing the Delaware the night before his overwhelming defeat of British troops at Trenton, and the best known portrait of the father of his country. Below, left to right, are Martha Washington; Washington as a young officer in the colonial militia when he fought in the French and Indian wars; Washington's first inauguration, an original in oil done by Clyde O. Doland, and Mount Vernon, Washington's home on the Potomac.

Planning Attack on Own Speed Mark

Surrounded by a throng of hero worshippers, Sir Malcolm Campbell, famous British sportsman and holder of the world's automobile speed record, is shown as he started for his first spin, since his arrival, in his wonder car, "Blue Bird," at Daytona Beach, Fla. Campbell has made several improvements in the "bullet on wheels" since he established the record of 245 miles an hour last year, and is confident that he will better that mark in an attempt he will make soon on Daytona speedway

Held for Ransom

Mystery still enshrouds the kidnaping of Henry S. Blagden, millionaire sportsman of New York, who disappeared from his cottage at Lake Placid, N. Y., where he was attending the Winter Olympiad. A letter in Blagden's handwriting was received by his brother, Thomas, telling that he was held for $1,000 ransom and setting forth directions as to the payment of the money. Thomas carried out instructions, but the kidnapers failed to appear at the rendezvous.

Seventy at Work

Celebrating his 70th birthday by working just as hard as usual, Charles M. Schwab, steel magnate, is shown at his desk in his New York office. The famous business man, looking hale and hearty as ever, marked the passing of his three score and ten years with the optimistic prediction that the depression is in its last gasp.

AVIATION FURTHERED BY TWO INVENTIONS

(International News Service)

DAYTON, Feb. 19.—Aviation took another step forward with the recent invention of a standard inertia airplane starter and gas helmet, both productions of Wright field in Dayton.

The starter consists of a booster magneto incorporated in the drive. As soon as the starter is applied its gears mesh with the booster, bringing instantaneous results.

The new mechanism, which weighs approximately 30 pounds, eliminates the necessity for separate booster, magneto and control, dispensing with about 10 pounds of the engine's weight. While pilots' attentions formerly concentrated on the booster, they now can be devoted to the throttle and wabble pump.

The two-ply balloon fabric helmet is much similar to that of a belldiver. It fits snugly, over the person's head. The front consists of a pyralin lense, and also has air supply and exhaust lines located near the wearer's mouth. The exhaust hose is three times as large as those of air supply, thus relieving any pressure on one's head.

Bears Preparing For Large Orders In Stock Market

Bears See Chance To Buy Heavily In New Stock Exchange Ruling

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Large buying orders were placed today with stock brokers before the market opened by bear operators who saw in the new stock exchange ruling curbing short selling the doom of big scale operations for the decline.

The board of governors of the exchange announced at the close of yesterday's market session that beginning April 1, member firms must procure the written consent of customers before shares are lent to those wishing to protect their commitments on the down side of the market.

Short selling, Wall Street circles believed, will reduce 50 per cent or more under the new ban.

Uniontown Hotel Damaged By Fire

Two Score Guests Flee From Historic Hotel—Damage Is $25,000

BLAST FOLLOWS BASEMENT FIRE

(International News Service)

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 19.—Two score guests of the Lafayette Hotel here fled to safety early early today when fire, followed by a gas explosion, wrecked the furnace room of the historic hostelry.

Firemen battled for three hours to confine the flames to the basement and two first-floor business establishments, succeeding in their efforts after a general alarm brought out all the fire apparatus in the city.

The natural gas explosion, which aroused sleeping guests and nearby residents, came just as night clerk Lloyd Mahoney discovered smoke curling up from the basement, where a furnace had apparently become overheated.

Damage from the blaze was estimated at $25,000.

May Rule Erin

Once a national hero in Ireland and recognized President of the unrecognized "Irish Republic," Eamonn de Valera, leader of the Fianna Fail, or Republican Party, is reported as having an excellent chance of being elected President of the Executive Council of Ireland, the highest position in the country. Should he succeed in ousting President Cosgrave, de Valera promises Ireland absolute severance from the British Empire.

ROAMING

With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle.

This story is true, or at least we have every reason to believe that it is. Jim Tucker is the authority for it and Jim can usually back up anything he says. It concerns a runaway horse that recognized a block signal. And it happened yesterday afternoon.

Some sub-conscious urge must have hit the horse as he was travelling down Mill street. Perhaps some fire horse blood in him came to the surface or he had been eating race horse oats. Whatever the reason, he decided to go on the loose and cutting across lots started down the B. & O. railroad tracks.

Ears laid back like Twenty Grand, tail standing out like a sample of a brush salesman, he kept on down the B. & O. until he got to Gardner avenue. For some reason he didn't like the service or the road bed or something about the B. & O. and he decided to transfer to the P. & L. E.

All along the line, section hands, train crews, and car knockers tried to stop him. Somebody rushed to the telephone and called the operator at HO Tower, and true to every tradition of the service he set the block at red which means "Stop."

Jimmy Carroll, car inspector at Ferrona Junction was at the tower and Jimmy grabbed a red flag and dashed down to flag the main line. In a few moments the recreant Pegasus hove into sight, with his guages at full steam ahead. The red flag and the red block stopped him.

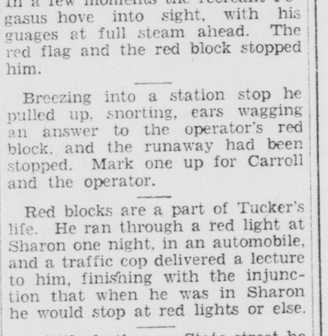

Breezing into a station stop he pulled up, snorting, ears wagging an answer to the operator's red block, and the runaway had been stopped. Mark one up for Carroll and the operator.

Red blocks are a part of Tucker's life. He ran through a red light at Sharon one night, in an automobile, and a traffic cop delivered a lecture to him, finishing with the injunction that when he was in Sharon he would stop at red lights or else.

A little farther up State street he saw another red light, this one a permanent warning on the crossing gates. It was red, and the cop had said stop at all of them and Jim stopped, tieing up traffic and starting a riot of horns.

The same cop answered the alarm and getting to the head of the line found Jim sitting in his car serene and unruffled. "What's the idea?" bawled the cop. "Didn't you say to stop at all red lights," asked Jim. "I did that" was the answer. To which answered by pointing to the permanent red warning lamp.

The vets of Lincoln-Garfield school held their winter reunion Thursday evening and between songs and bologna sandwiches, the boys lived over some of the days when names like Fiscus and Barnett were on the roster of teachers.

Expert At Akron To Test Vertical 80-Ton Tunnel

Effect Of Every Type Of Wind On Aircraft To Be Charted

(International News Service)

AKRON, O., Feb. 19.—Although the 80-ton vertical wind tunnel being built by the Guggenheim Airship Research Institute will not be complete until April, Dr. Theodore Troller, Aachen, Germany, who will make the tests on various types of airplanes, already has arrived here for work.

The wind tunnel will provide for the measurement of the effect of every type of wind current on lighter-than-air craft. A powerful motor will send air through the tunnel at up to 125 miles an hour while exact models of airships tug away at fine steel wires which measure the resistance.

Dr. Troller is 28 years old. He came to America from Aachen a year ago and studied at the California Institute of Technology before coming here. He, like Dr. Karl Arstein, designer of the U. S. S. Akron, is a native of Czecho-slovakian.

"The very difficult part of the study of aerodynamics has ben in measuring the resistance of various parts of the ships while traveling through the air. Dr. Troller explained. "With the wind tunnel, one of the first studies will be to determine the resistance of parts in the immediate neighborhood of the hull through the use of the minature models tested under exact flying conditions."

SEVEN REPEAL MEASURES

(International News Service)

SEATTLE, Wash.—Voters of this state will have at least seven measures to decide upon next fall, according to the list on file already with J. Grant Hinkle, secretary of state. The measures would repeal state prohibition laws, permit permanent registration of voters, tax chain stores, limit taxes in larger cities to 40 mills, abolish 39 county game commissions in favor of a single state commission, and two would exempt small homes from taxation.

Spins Sea Tales As He Enrolls In Art Institute

Sailor Has Given Up The Sea To Study Art

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 19.—Howard H. Hardy, 24-year-old sailor of Seattle, Wash., has given up the sea for art. He has enrolled in the Art Institute of Pittsburgh.

Having served three years before the masts of United States Coast and Geodetic vessels, Hardy brought with him some mementoes of his life in the world of spars and rigging.

One of them is a life preserver. It was given him, he said by Vincent Natal, gunner's mate, who sank the U boat that sank the Lusitania.

"Natal dropped the depth bomb that sunk the submarine which fired on the Lusitania," said the sailor artist in praise of his friend.

Hardy said that the life-preserver was from the sunken S. S. Aleutian and he told the story of its floundering, giving it an ironical twist.

"The Aleutian," Hardy related, "went aground on some unchartered rocks in the Gulf of Alaska two summers ago and sank.

"All the passengers and crew were saved by the Surveyor ship except one.

"And the only man who lost his life was a member of the crew who owned a horseshoe that he said always brought him luck.

"He was already in the lifeboat when he decided to go back and get the horseshoe he left in his berth. While he was on board the ship sank."
